Stop Light Passers Get New Warning

Mystery Veils Flash Blaze In Missouri

Renewed Drive Also Aims At Sign Chiselers

Merriman Stresses Motoring Safety Is Meant For All

Circleville Police Chief Elmer Merriman announced today the start of another crackdown on motorists who ignore the city's traffic lights and stop signs.

Only way to make careless drivers comply with the law in this regard, Merriman said, is "to keep lowering the boom on them every once in awhile until they're convinced we're serious about it. Somehow or other a lot of drivers who obey other parts of the law think nothing of crashing a red light or ignoring a stop sign—especially if it's on one of the out-of-the-way corners and they don't see any sign of a police cruiser."

The latest drive concentrated on traffic lights and stop signs was touched off in part by a near-miss Saturday morning at Main and Washington streets. Eyewitnesses said a bad accident was narrowly averted when an automobile going west on Main nearly crashed into a taxicab going north on Washington.

The cab at the time had the green light in traffic signals at the intersection. Bystanders said the driver of the other car, judging by his emergency stop, apparently failed to see the traffic lights.

POLICE WERE attempting to gather more details in an effort to identify the driver of the passenger car, which stopped only for a second to avoid the collision and then continued — despite the red light.

City Safety Director Miller Fissell and Merriman have both warned several times that periodic drives will be staged to enforce respect for traffic lights and stop signs in the city.

"We realize, of course, that a wise guy here and there gets away with it when nobody is around to stop him," the chief explained, "but we're determined to tighten up on all the traffic safety rules, even though it has to be a gradual campaign as far as the outlying sections are concerned. Sooner or later we'll be catching the violators in the act—and then you

Korean War Bonus Forms Readied

COLUMBUS (AP)—Forms for the payment of bonuses to Ohio veterans of the Korean War will be ready for distribution about April 1.

Bonus Director Chester W. Goble announced the date after the state sinking fund commission today approved the forms.

The commission authorized forms for living veterans and their next of kin. They will be distributed through veterans organizations and state bonus headquarters in Columbus.

Payments will be based on $10 a month for domestic and $15 a month for foreign service up to a maximum of $400 per veteran.

H-Bomb Shelter Estimate Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP)—To the estimated $40 billion which would be needed for a national program of building H-bomb shelters, add another $700 million for establishing a reliable warning system to tell all the people to take cover.

A study made for the National Academy of Sciences' Advisory Committee on Civil Defense makes that cost estimate for the warning system.

U. S. Abandoning Efforts To Get Israeli Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States virtually washed its hands today of efforts outside the United Nations to win Israeli withdrawal from Egyptian territory.

After an all-out weekend try which the White House said brought no agreement, President Eisenhower bluntly told Israel it now has "the maximum assurance that it can reasonably expect at this juncture, or that can be reconciled with fairness to others."

That was a key phrase in an 800-word statement authorized by the President at his Thomasville, Ga., vacation headquarters. He wound it up with a new appeal for Israeli cooperation with the United Nations, declaring:

"The United States, for its part, will strive to remain true to, and support, the United Nations in its efforts to sustain the purposes and principles of the charter, as the world's best hope of peace."

Israeli officials said, however, their talks with American officials are not at an end. Despite the air of finality about American pronouncements, Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban said he expects to meet again with Secretary of State Dulles, "but no date has been fixed."

In Jerusalem, Israel announced today she is immediately recalling Eban from Washington. He will report on latest developments in the dispute.

Darby Trojans Ruled Out Of County Tourney

Protest By Walnut Based On Use Of Ineligible Player

BULLETIN
Due to a protest filed by Walnut Township, Darby High school has been declared ineligible for further play in the Pickaway County basketball tournament.

This ruling was made official about noon today by the Ohio High Athletic Association. The protest was based on the fact that the Trojans used an ineligible player during one regular season game, plus the tournament game against Walnut last week. According to the ruling, Walnut will meet Atlanta tonight instead of the Trojans.

Another round of basketball action is slated tonight at the fairgrounds coliseum with two county tournament games on schedule for the evening.

Atlanta clashes with Darby at 7:30 p. m. and Scioto enters tourney play for the first time when they meet Saltcreek at 9 p. m.

So far, New Holland, Walnut, Monroe, Williamsport and Jackson have been bumped from the single elimination tournament. Teams which have been victorious in tourney engagements are: Darby, Saltcreek, Pickaway and Ashville. The Broncos won their second game Friday night in a meeting with Jackson.

Although Darby and Scioto are expected to roll tonight, Atlanta and Saltcreek are capable of coming through with surprises.

DARBY will probably go all-out to record its second tourney win and Scioto's cagers can be counted on to display the same brand of ball that earned them a share of the regular season crown.

Tonight's battles will end quarter-final play with semi-finals slated for Wednesday night. Pickaway will meet Ashville that evening at 7:30 p. m., and the winners of tonight's contests are carded for battle at 9 p. m.

Consolation and final games are scheduled for Friday night when the field will be narrowed to four teams. Between now and that time, area cage fans are assured that "anything can happen."

Wynn, Skelton Given Video Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ed Wynn and Red Skelton, who have made a lifetime career of taking comic pratfalls, turned to tear production this season and won nominations for television Emmies.

The nomination of the two famous comics highlighted the televised nomination ceremony Saturday night of the Television Academy of Arts and Sciences. Nominees were announced in 29 acting and technical categories, with the winners to be selected March 16.

Wynn's nomination for best supporting actor and Skelton's for best single performance were 2 of 13 nominations won by Playhouse 90, the CBS-TV drama.

Among other nominees: John Daly, newscaster; Nanette Fabray, comedienne; James (Gunsmoke) Arness and Hugh (Wyatt Earp) O'Brien, expected to have a showdown fight for best series actor; Evelyn Rudie, the child actress who played "Eloise"; Jack Benny, comedian; Jane Wyman, actress.

was shifting to the U. N. in New York City, Dulles' door still was open to Eban if his government wants to change its mind about holding on to the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area called Sharm el Sheikh.

Golda Meir, Israel's foreign minister, said Sunday night Israeli troops would evacuate Sharm el Sheikh in an hour if the United States guaranteed free shipping to all nations in the Gulf of Aqaba.

She proposed three other possible solutions: (1) a similar guarantee by Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which border the gulf, (2) stationing of U. N. police forces at Sharm el Sheikh to prevent harassment of gulf shipping, and (3) an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

It was to avoid a showdown in the U. N. on the issue of sanctions against Israel that Dulles proposed his two-part plan.

Eban came back with a counter proposal which the United States found just as unacceptable. Both plans were made public Sunday night. The formal documents bore out what already had been reported of their substance:

1. That Dulles demanded "prompt and unconditional" Israeli withdrawal from the areas

Vandals Steal Portsmouth Police Phone

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—Vandals here are bold; they're stealing phones from the police station.

In the latest wave of cable slashings, officers said, someone apparently sneaked into police headquarters, cut a pay telephone's wire and then stole the receiver.

The incident came in an outbreak of vandalism during the weekend in which 30 more cable slashings were reported.

Only a handful of the 1,700 telephones in Portsmouth are now operating, police said. Cuttings over the weekend knocked out telephone service at Portsmouth's hospitals, and disrupted telephone and radio communications at the Scioto County sheriff's office and the State Highway Patrol post.

Regular and auxiliary policemen joined Red Cross workers in serving as messengers for emergency hospital cases.

The Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. also reported a number of cable slashings in the Harrison County area. A company spokesman said service was disrupted between Cadiz and Flushing and between Cadiz and New Athens.

More than 500 cable cutting incidents have now been reported since the Communications Workers of America (CWA) went on strike against Ohio Consolidated July 15. CWA officials have consistently denied responsibility.

Josef Hofman, 81, Pianist Is Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Death has ended the long and varied career of famed pianist Josef Hofmann.

The Polish-born musician—celebrated first, at 5, as a piano prodigy—died Saturday at 81 in a Los Angeles nursing home. Physicians blamed a heart attack for his death. He had been hospitalized only four days.

Hofmann was a finished concert pianist, a composer, a teacher of gifted pupils, a director of a great conservatory and, amazingly, an inventor of mechanical devices and auto accessories, for which he held more than 60 patents.

Senate Ready For Debate On Mideast Policy

Knowland Says Ike's Resolution To Get Nod By 2-1 Margin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) predicted today the Senate will pass by a margin of more than 2-1 its revised version of President Eisenhower's anti-Communist Mideast resolution.

But Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said that if more than 25 of the Senate's 96 members vote "no," their action might classify the resolution as "one of those matters it might have been better not to bring up."

Both Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have urged a decisive vote for the resolution to demonstrate solid support. The House passed it 355-61.

The Senate is expected to begin debate on the Middle East plan late today after acting on its first money bill this session.

As revised by Senate committees, the resolution would provide that "if the President determines the necessity thereof, the United States is prepared to use armed forces" to assist Middle Eastern nations seeking such aid "against armed aggression from any country controlled by international communism."

UP TO $200 million in military and economic aid also would be made available for Middle Eastern countries.

The Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees approved this version as a substitute for the House-passed bill which would directly authorize Eisenhower to use troops to aid countries requesting assistance.

Of the 30 committee members, eight influential Democrats voted against the resolution.

Their opposition to any declaration of this type seemed likely to reflect a larger "no" vote in the Senate than administration expected.

Knowland said he believes there will be no major changes in the measure as it was approved by the committees.

Detroit UAW Union Raps Gear Transfer

DETROIT (AP)—Local 212 of the United Auto Workers said today its members will refuse to move or ship any dies or fixtures from Chrysler's Detroit stamping division plants until an agreement is reached with the company on job transfer rights.

Pat Caruso, president of the local, said Chrysler Corp. "is removing dies piece-meal from the stamping division plants."

Caruso said the equipment was to be sent to a new Chrysler plant in Twinsburg, Ohio.

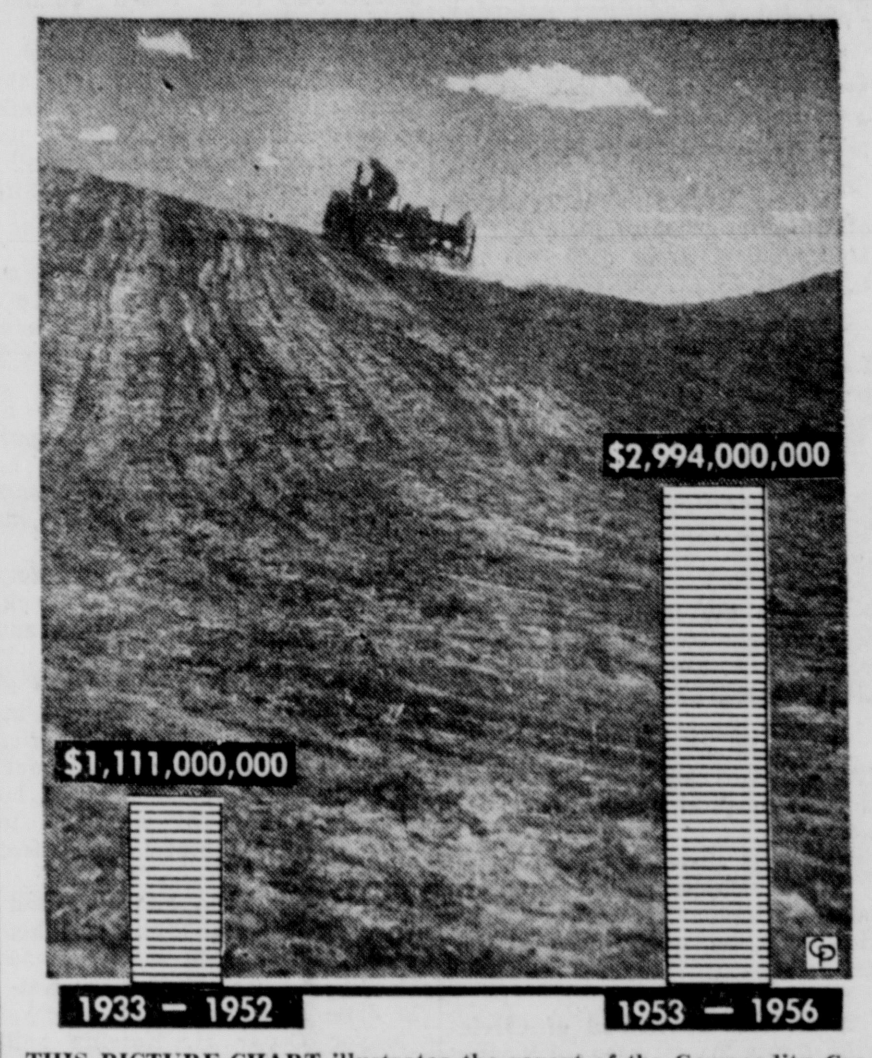

"The movement of these jobs," Caruso said, "decreases job opportunities for members of Local 212. Thousands of Chrysler workers have built their homes and based their futures in the Greater Detroit area, and all have ties in this community. These workers have a right to know what their economic status will be."

A spokesman for Chrysler Corp. described Caruso's statement as "both premature and unjustified."

He said Chrysler's central labor relations office is negotiating with the international UAW on the Twinsburg situation.

The Chrysler spokesman said, "The whole question of job and equipment transfers is being discussed by the company and the international union." He said there are at present no production workers at the Twinsburg plant.

There was no immediate comment from the International UAW.

THIS PICTURE-CHART illustrates the report of the Commodity Credit Corporation that the government's losses in supporting farm prices were nearly three times greater during the first administration of President Eisenhower, 1953 through 1956, than in all the previous 20 years of farm programs, from 1933 through 1952. As of Dec. 31, 1956, the government owned surplus farm products costing $5,892,000,000, and had issued loans amounting to $2,319,000,000 on crops withheld from market by farmers.

Snowshoe Crews At Crash Scene

CRAIG, Colo. (AP)—Snowshoe parties set out today to return the bodies of four Denver men killed in the crash of their private plane February 8 near Craig.

One of the victims, Harvey Kite, 40, was the husband of a former Circleville resident, Jean Thacher.

Four men in a 45-member ground party reached the wreckage Sunday on a mountainside 23 miles south of this northwestern Colorado town. The four searchers reported snow in the immediate area of the wreckage was 10 to 12 feet deep.

The two-engine plane crashed at about 11,000 feet on the north slope of Sleepy Cat Peak in the Colorado Rio Blanco National Forest.

THE PLANE, owned by Mountain States Construction Co. of Denver, was returning to Denver from Ogden, Utah. The pilot was Howard C. Nelson, 47.

Others aboard were Kite, Paul Kean, 32, and A. J. Parker, 35, all employed by the construction firm.

A member of the ground party

reported the plane "apparently went straight down." The wreckage was partly hidden in snow and trees.

The broken plane was spotted Saturday by Maj. Austin F. Epasaro of Camp Hale, Colo., pilot of an Army liaison plane. He was attracted by a sun reflection from a tail section of the wreckage.

Esparro's discovery climaxed one of the area's largest aerial searches. About 65 Civil Air Patrol, military and private planes participated in the hunt Saturday.

Kite, Kean and Parker were all former Columbus business men. Parker was a native of Portsmouth, Ohio.

Prober Hints Frauds Seen In 6 Unions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate probers, digging for evidence of racketeering in labor and industry, say they have uncovered signs of widespread fraud.

Reporting this Sunday, Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said investigators are at work in nine cities. He said more than six unions are involved. He predicted the inquiry would turn up evidence to warrant criminal charges.

McClellan is chairman of a special Senate committee set up to handle the labor-management racketeering inquiry.

He said six months of investigations have produced indications of fraud in many places. Evidence of racketeering "extended plumb out to the West Coast."

Among problems the committee will deal with are labor-management collusion, racketeer control of some unions, misuse of union and welfare funds, violence, shake-downs, conflict of interest by officials, and deprivation of civil rights of union members.

McClellan said New York, Philadelphia, Scranton, Chicago, Minneapolis, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle have been investigated.

Unions under study were listed as the teamsters, carpenters, operating engineers, plumbers and steamfitters, Allied Industrial Workers and other groups in the building trades.

LISBON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh stepped ashore here today for the first visit to Portugal by a British monarch in 53 years.

155 Inmates—Many Bedridden—Housed In 65-Year-Old Building

WARRENTON, Mo. (AP)—Grim-faced men poked through the smoldering ruins of an old folks home today for the bodies of at least 70 persons who died in the blazing funeral pyre within minutes Sunday afternoon.

The searchers, working in spots cooled off by streams of water, had found 16. Smoke and steam continued to rise from the ruins.

Seventy of the 155 inmates, including 45 women, were reported missing in the fast-spreading fire. A ripping explosion followed.

One eyewitness said the entire building was aflame in three or four minutes.

Authorities were baffled by the speed with which the flames raced through the two-story brick building.

The building went down by floors. The roof fell in. The second floor followed and it all collapsed into the basement.

Mrs. Bernice McDaniel, a nurse's aide, said she and Mrs. Alta Floyd were on duty when her 10-year-old daughter called "out fire." All three escaped unhurt.

"WE MADE OUR way down the stairs and out the crowded front door," she said. "We didn't have an opportunity to rescue any of the patients. They were all bedridden."

Mrs. McDaniel said that after reaching safety she "heard a terrific explosion."

She said there were seven nurse's aides, janitors and kitchen workers on duty at the time of the tragedy.

"The whole building was in flames in just three or four minutes," said John J. Barada, 34, one of the first to reach the scene.

Bodies could be seen in the rubble. They were so badly burned that plastic bags and cardboard cartons were used to gather them up. Most of the bodies appeared to be in the basement.

County Coroner F. H. Knigge estimated the death toll "from 70 on up." The state highway patrol, in reporting 70 inmates unaccounted for, did not include employees.

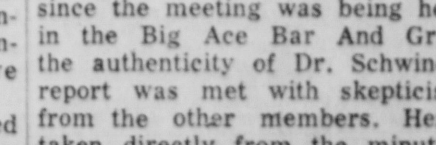

FIREMEN FROM 25 nearby communities, townspeople and attendants rushed into the burning building and helped bedridden inmates and the injured out before flames thwarted further rescue attempts.

Shortly after the fire's start, a muffled explosion shot flames and smoke billowing into the air, visible more than 30 miles away.

It started off as a pleasant Sunday afternoon. Relatives were visiting with inmates. Some 50 of

At the last meeting of the F.S.S.T. (Flying Saucer Spotters Of Terra) Dr. Schwine claimed to have seen this cloud through a skylight while using Spotting Position No. 6-B (reclining). However, since the meeting was being held in the Big Ace Bar And Grill, the authenticity of Dr. Schwine's report was met with skepticism from the other members. Here, taken directly from the minutes, is an account of what each one thought of Dr. Schwine's discovery. Mrs. Schwine: "Sober the bum up and send him home!" THIS PICTURE-CHART illustrates the report of the Commodity Credit Corporation that the government's losses in supporting farm prices were nearly three times greater during the first administration of President Eisenhower, 1953 through 1956, than in all the previous 20 years of farm programs, from 1933 through 1952. As of Dec. 31, 1956, the government owned surplus farm products costing $5,892,000,000 and had issued loans amounting to $2,319,000,000 on crops withheld from market by farmers.

Snowshoe Crews At Crash Scene

CRAIG, Colo. (AP)—Snowshoe parties set out today to return the bodies of four Denver men killed in the crash of their private plane February 8 near Craig.

One of the victims, Harvey Kite, 40, was the husband of a former Circleville resident, Jean Thacher.

Four men in a 45-member ground party reached the wreckage Sunday on a mountainside 23 miles south of this northwestern Colorado town. The four searchers reported snow in the immediate area of the wreckage was 19 to 12 feet deep.

The two-engine plane crashed at about 11,000 feet on the north slope of Sleepy Cat Peak in the Colorado Rio Blanco National Forest.

THE PLANE, owned by Mountain States Construction Co. of Denver, was returning to Denver from Ogden, Utah. The pilot was Howard C. Nelson, 47.

Others aboard were Kite, Paul Kean, 32, and A. J. Parker, 35, all employed by the construction firm.

A member of the ground party

reported the plane "apparently went straight down." The wreckage was partly hidden in snow and trees.

The broken plane was spotted Saturday by Maj. Austin F. Esparo of Camp Hale, Colo., pilot of an Army liaison plane. He was attracted by a sun reflection from a tail section of the wreckage.

Esparro's discovery climaxed one of the area's largest aerial searches. About 65 Civil Air Patrol, military and private planes participated in the hunt Saturday.

Kite, Kean and Parker were all former Columbus business men. Parker was a native of Portsmouth, Ohio.

Prober Hints Frauds Seen In 6 Unions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate probes, digging for evidence of racketeering in labor and industry, say they have uncovered signs of widespread fraud.

Reporting this Sunday, Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said investigators are at work in nine cities. He said more than six unions are involved. He predicted the inquiry would turn up evidence to warrant criminal charges.

McClellan is chairman of a special Senate committee set up to handle the labor-management racketeering inquiry.

He said six months of investigations have produced indications of fraud in many places. Evidence of racketeering "extended plumb out to the West Coast."

Among problems the committee will deal with are labor-management collusion, racketeer control of some unions, misuse of union and welfare funds, violence, shake-downs, conflict of interest by officials, and deprivation of civil rights of union members.

McClellan said New York, Philadelphia, Scranton, Chicago, Minneapolis, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle have been investigated.

Unions under study were listed as the teamsters, carpenters, operating engineers, plumbers and steamfitters, Allied Industrial Workers and other groups in the building trades.

Mystery Veils Flash Blaze In Missouri

155 Inmates—Many Bedridden—Housed In 65-Year-Old Building

WARRENTON, Mo. (AP)—Grim-faced men poked through the smoldering ruins of an old folks home today for the bodies of at least 70 persons who died in the blazing funeral pyre within minutes Sunday afternoon.

The searchers, working in spots cooled off by streams of water, had found 16. Smoke and steam continued to rise from the ruins.

Seventy of the 155 inmates, including 45 women, were reported missing in the fast-spreading fire. A ripping explosion followed.

One eyewitness said the entire building was aflame in three or four minutes.

Authorities were baffled by the speed with which the flames raced through the two-story brick building.

The building went down by floors. The roof fell in. The second floor followed and it all collapsed into the basement.

Mrs. Bernice McDaniel, a nurse's aide, said she and Mrs. Alta Floyd were on duty when her 10-year-old daughter called out "fire." All three escaped unhurt.

"WE MADE OUR way down the stairs and out the crowded front door," she said. "We didn't have an opportunity to rescue any of the patients. They were all bedridden."

Mrs. McDaniel said that after reaching safety she "heard a terrific explosion."

She said there were seven nurse's aides, janitors and kitchen workers on duty at the time of the tragedy.

"The whole building was in flames in just three or four minutes," said John J. Barada, 34, one of the first to reach the scene.

Bodies could be seen in the rubble. They were so badly burned that plastic bags and cardboard cartons were used to gather them up. Most of the bodies appeared to be in the basement.

County Coroner F. H. Knigge estimated the death toll "from 70 on up." The state highway patrol, in reporting 70 inmates unaccounted for, did not include employees.

Shortly after the fire's start, a muffled explosion shot flames and smoke billowing into the air, visible more than 30 miles away.

It started off as a pleasant Sunday afternoon. Relatives were visiting with inmates. Some 50 of (Continued on Page Two)

"DARK CLOUD WEARING BELT TO HOLD UP ITS SILVER LINING"

At the last meeting of the F.S.S.T. (Flying Saucer Spotters of Terra) Dr. Schweine claimed to have seen this cloud through a skylight while using Spotting Position No. 6-B (reclining). However, since the meeting was being held in the Big Ace Bar and Grill, the authenticity of Dr. Schweine's report was met with skepticism from the other members. Here, taken directly from the minutes, is an account of what each one thought of Dr. Schweine's discovery. Mrs. Schweine: "Sober the bum up and send him home!" Mr. Cossayuna: "Anybody for Shuffleboard?" Miss Patricia Del Ray: "Who played that Guy Lombardo Record?" Dr. Kitzenger: "Gimme a glass of whatever he's been drinking!" Professor Fritz Zitt: "Hic!" Meanwhile, at the United Nations, the Asian-African group of 27 U.N. delegates appeared still undecided whether to ask the General Assembly to vote economic penalties now to get Israel out of Egypt.

A usually well-informed Arab source reported he had heard "it was the sense of the group" that a resolution calling for economic sanctions should be introduced when the General Assembly resumes debate on the Middle East Tuesday.

Police Question Gallipolis Youth

GALLIPOLIS (AP)—A 17-year-old Gallipolis boy is in custody here today while Ohio and West Virginia officers search for a missing Ironton man whom the youth is supposed to have driven to Florida.

In custody is Lloyd Hill, 17, who officers said was hired to drive John Ward, 68, of Ironton, to Florida on a business trip.

In Charleston, W. Va., State Trooper G. W. Dickson said Ward disappeared shortly after he cashed a check for $3,250 last Thursday and hired Hill to drive him to Florida in Ward's car. Two days later, Dickson said, Hill returned to Gallipolis in Ward's car. Ward was not with him.

Police said Hill told them he drove Ward to Winston - Salem, N. C., where Ward disappeared.

DELAWARE (AP)—David Bellomy, 16, held in the Friday night shotgun slaying of his stepfather, Wesley W. Horn, 49, is scheduled to appear in juvenile court this week.

Juvenile Judge Paul W. Barrett said the hearing will come after further investigation by Prosecutor George Smyth. The court then will either dispose of the case or turn Bellomy over to the grand jury.

If tried and convicted in juvenile court on a complaint that he killed Horn, Bellomy could be placed in an institution. If bound to the grand jury and indicted for murder he would stand trial in common pleas court as an adult.

them were believed to have broken in the building when the fire broke out at 3:45 p. m. Not all of them had been accounted for.

The fire reportedly started in a hallway nearby. The operator of the home, Woodrow O'Sullivan, had no idea what caused it.

Authorities said they were puzzled over how quickly flames enveloped the 65-year-old building. O'Sullivan estimated property damage at $250,000.

Mrs. Myrtle Gordon, 68, St. Charles, Mo., who needs crutches to walk, was resting on her bed on the first floor. She smelled smoke and then heard running footsteps.

"I threw on a robe and grabbed my crutches and went into the hall," she related. "I never walked faster in my life. When I got to the door people were jamming up there and I got shoved out with everyone else."

THIRTY-NINE patients in an adjoining building, also a two-story brick structure, were evacuated safely and taken to a grocery across the street.

Warren Stuart, an employee at a nearby filling station, was putting gasoline in a car when he heard the fire alarm in this east central Missouri town of 1,600, 55 miles west of St. Louis.

He helped six inmates to safety before flames turned him back. He told of hearing screams and cries for help.

Mrs. Velma O'Sullivan, wife of the operator of the home, was injured slightly helping 10 inmates escape. She and others laid mattresses on the ground and told inmates, standing at windows, to jump. Several jumped the 20 feet to safety.

O'Sullivan, who had operated the home since 1948, said his patients ranged in age from 50 to 99 years. He called it the Katie Jane Memorial Home.

Mayor Oscar H. Kossina said the Warren Volunteer Fire Department had inspected the home only four weeks ago and it had "passed inspection."

The nursing home fire was the third of its kind in the state in slightly more than four years. Twelve persons lost their lives in a rest home fire at Puxico in southeast Missouri last July. Eighteen persons burned to death in the fall of 1952 in Hillsboro, south of St. Louis. The Hillsboro home was operated by O'Sullivan's sister, Mrs. James Lewis, and her husband.

Commissioners To Huddle On Park Lot Soon

Pickaway County's controversial courthouse parking lot may have its off-again-on-again fate settled before long.

County Commissioner Harley Mace said today the three commissioners would have to "discuss the matter sometime soon."

Mace also disclosed that no money has yet been paid out on the contract for the proposed lot.

Work on the project was halted when a temporary injunction against completion of the lot was obtained last December in a taxpayer's suit filed by Arthur Wilkin and William Hickey.

ALTHOUGH the temporary ban was vacated January 9 by a court order, no attempt has been made to complete the project. It would change what once was the courthouse lawn into parking space.

George Van Camp who was awarded the contract for the lot, told The Herald two weeks ago that he had no plans to resume construction.

In the meantime, taxpayers Wilkin and Hickey are appealing the lifting of the injunction against work on the job.

Zanesville Man Admits Arson, Slaying Guilt

Half-Sister, Husband Killed; Slayer Tired Of Running From Law

ZANESVILLE (AP)—Russell Thomas McCoy, 22, pleaded guilty in municipal court today to two charges of murder and one of auto theft. The charges that he shot his half-sister and brother-in-law Feb. 9 and stole the couple's car were contained in the affidavits.

Judge Robert Merry ordered McCoy bound over without bond to the grand jury. The Muskingum County prosecutor said he would call a special session of the grand jury to hear the charges.

McCoy admitted Sunday he shot to death Louise See, 46, and her husband, Lloyd, 39, when they objected to his drinking. He said he then burned down the See's cabin home about 10 miles east of here and fled in See's auto.

McCoy, object of a nationwide manhunt, surrendered to Muskingum County Deputy Sheriff Fred Uffner here early Sunday.

"I want to give myself up," he told Uffner. "I can't live with it." McCoy unfolded his account of the slayings and of his subsequent flight in two and a half hours of questioning by Prosecutor Joseph McNeerney, his assistant Richard Bridwell and Sheriff David Weisert.

McCoy told of the shootings, the fire and the drive to Columbus, and admitted robbing three establishments there of about $325.

HE USED THE money, he said, to travel first to Chicago, then to Oklahoma City; El Paso, Texas; Juarez, Mexico; and finally, when his money began to give out, back to Zanesville.

What he did not spend on transportation, he said in a 54-page statement, he spent on drinking and visiting night clubs.

In reply to a question by McNeerney, McCoy said he returned here because "you can't run when you haven't got any money. You'll get caught sooner or later."

McCoy said he did not have a good time on his drinking spree. "You don't have a good time when somebody's after you. I was just running," he said.

McCoy took a bus from El Paso to Columbus, and then hitch-hiked a ride on a truck to Zanesville. His first stop was at the home of Dale Bundy, with whom McCoy worked in the Line Material Co. here.

Bundy was not home, but his wife, Eloise, talked with McCoy through a window. She refused to admit him to the house.

Mrs. Bundy quoted McCoy as telling her:

"I know I have done an awful thing, I'm sorry because I loved them both."

Mrs. Bundy also told authorities McCoy said he felt "like jumping in the river."

When McCoy left, Mrs. Bundy said, she went to a neighbor's house to telephone the police.

Ten minutes later, however, McCoy, unarmed and down to a little more than $4, walked into the county jail.

Circleville Pupil In Top 10 After Spelling Contest

An eighth grade pupil from St. Joseph's School in Circleville was one of the surviving "10 best" in a spelling bee held for school children of the Columbus Catholic Diocese.

One of the 10 who thus won the right to compete in another match scheduled for Columbus, March 30, was Sandy Smith, 13, the St. Joseph's school representative. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Smith, 145 Montclair Ave., Circleville.

Dozen Knotty Problems Face Ohio Assembly

Short Session Hope May Be Abandoned By Legislative Leaders

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Legislative leaders here hope for a short session of the Legislature but are determined to solve a dozen knotty problems before final adjournment.

Some of the problems are holdovers that defied solution in previous sessions. Others have become increasingly pressing because of population, economic and other changes.

Sen. C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens), Senate majority leader, and House Speaker Roger Cloud (R-Logan) said legislators are determined to find answers this session. They already are hard at work on some of them.

"All the subjects are dry and tough," Cloud asserted. "Few people realize the number of tedious hours of work required of committee members to iron things out. But we are going to do something about them."

The House created a special Metropolitan Committee to wrestle with complex situations arising from the mushroom growth of city suburbs. Water and sewer facilities, police and fire protection and other necessary services run into sub-division and district barriers that Cloud termed almost insurmountable.

Proposals to change the state constitution and enact new laws to make such facilities and services quickly available already are under study.

Looking over the thorny field, legislators saw: City-suburban transit systems in financial trouble and in need of tax relief. Both private and publicly-owned systems are headed for bankruptcy. Some carry only half the passengers they once did. Fares went up to compensate and still more people decided to drive their own cars.

Legislative action must be taken before schools can get state money to help build urgently needed classrooms. Eligibility rules are hard to draft, say senators tackling the problem.

Representatives want to determine how school bus purchases can be handled equitably. Some buses travel only a few miles daily while others pile up mileage. A law enacted last session failed to solve that problem, legislators reported.

Several bills will be worked over to tighten school subsidy laws that underwent drastic revision last session. Some lawmakers claim the changes were too loosely handled.

Help for expanding state-supported universities is in the offing. Leaders expect this session to reach agreement on establishing branches but to let the next Legislature decide where to build.

Definite decisions are expected on the question of allowing laid off workers to draw supplemental unemployment benefits from employers in addition to state jobless compensation. Ohio bans simultaneous payments.

Awaiting introduction is a bill to speed up appeals in workmen's compensation cases. The last Legislature created a new department that sharply cut the time for processing claims. Leaders said the next step in that direction must be taken.

Another attempt is under way to let employers buy their workmen's compensation protection from insurance companies instead of from the state.

State employees virtually can bank on pay increases in the lower brackets. But legislators want to make sure they avoid inequities they feel would result from uniform, across-the-board raises.

Awaiting determination is the question of whether utility companies shall pay for relocating their facilities on major highway im-

Briton Tries Hard To Get Self Arrested

LONDON (AP)—John Boutell, 61, has been trying for months to get somebody to arrest him. He insists he defrauded Britain's National Health Service.

"Sorry, I can't help you, mate," the police sergeant told him after Boutell related his story of accepting sick benefits when he really wasn't sick. Police suggested he try the National Health Service.

But the National Health people said he didn't owe them any money.

Boutell persisted. He sent 200 pounds ($560) in "conscience money" to the government at Christmas, got an official receipt and went back triumphantly with it to the police.

The receipt proved he had done wrong and was trying to correct it, Boutell said. But policeman after policeman just shook his head.

Boutell turned up determinedly at the police station Friday and parked himself in front of detective Ian Reynolds. Wherever Reynolds tried to move, Boutell jumped in front of him and wouldn't budge.

Reynolds finally gave in, arresting Boutell on a charge of willfully obstructing a police officer in the execution of his duty.

The delighted Boutell went eagerly to court. "Conscience is a very funny thing," he told the judge.

But the judge told Boutell to forget it. The best he could do was order him back for a hearing. Meantime, the judge said, Boutell would have to go free again.

196,000 Flee

BUDAPEST (AP)—The Hungarian Foreign Ministry has acknowledged that about 196,000 refugees have left Hungary. The total included 16,000 fleeing to Yugoslavia.

Improvements or the cost shall be included in projects.

And several changes are needed, lawmakers admit, in laws dealing with courts of mayors and justices of the peace.

Ohio's new Republican governor, C. William O'Neill, also will have a number of matters for attention this session, leaders added in expressing determination to get things done as quickly as possible.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for five years and they have been the longest years of my life, due to my husband's excessive drinking.

I knew of his condition before marriage, but we thought our love for each other at that time would overcome this obstacle. Now I no longer love him and would like to get a divorce; but this isn't the real problem, however.

George hates children and thus far we've never had any—but last week I realized that I am pregnant. As yet I haven't told my husband of this discovery and would like your advice as to whether I should go ahead with divorce proceedings.

The question is whether to try to raise the child in a fatherless home? Or in a home with a drinking father, a father who never could give a child the love he should have. Your immediate answer will be much appreciated.

E. C.

DEAR E. C.: If you don't love your alcoholic husband, who himself hates children, your prospect of decent living with George has three strikes on it—after the baby arrives. It sounds like a nightmare setting for a child. And yet I can't say that divorce is the remedy—now or later.

There are definitely two sides to the long view. On the one hand, one can't offer any downright hope that your husband will conquer his alcoholism—inasmuch as successful recovery depends upon the drinker's will to be cured. And the final urge to "dry up" (as A.A.'s say) seldom takes hold until the drunkard has crashed landed at the bottom of Skid Row (or its equivalent). Usually he (or she) has wrecked one or more marital ventures, meantime.

However, on the other hand, it's

Russian Rockets Carrying Dogs

LONDON (AP)—Soviet scientists have fired rockets carrying dogs as passengers into outer space without ill effect to the animals, Moscow Radio reports.

The rockets reached a height of more than 62 miles, the broadcast said, and "not a single dog died during or following the experiments."

Throughout the experiments the behavior of the dogs inside their hermetically sealed cabins was filmed. There was no substantial change in their behavior during flight and they behaved normally after their return to earth."

Cuban Censors Use Ink Rollers Now

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban government censors are using ink rollers now to hide from the eyes of the Cuban people news about political unrest in that jittery nation.

Scissors have been used by the censors to clip out of incoming newspapers stories dealing with Cuba's political strife. Last week, ink rollers were substituted for the scissors. The airmail edition of the Miami Herald reached the news stands with an item on Cuban unrest blacked out.

Gasoline Price Hike Clamor Is Climax To Inflation Flurry

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Clamor over the hike in prices of gasoline and fuel oil has brought some sort of a climax to the turmoil over the latest flurry of inflation.

Actually the rise in the price of crude oil and its products has been less than for many another product—for whatever reason—as oilmen are quick to point out and to document.

But it is nearer to the pocket-book of the average person than, say, the price of steel.

Congressional critics also have pointed out that prior to the blockage of the Suez Canal, pressure for a rise in crude oil prices to offset rising costs of oil industry labor and materials was checked by rising stocks of oil in spite of production cuts aimed at preventing it.

After Mideast oil was cut off, European demand for Western oil cleared out the overhanging supplies and a price rise of 25 to 30 cents a barrel followed this January. The rate of oil production is still tightly controlled.

Oil men point out, however, that it was the first hike since June, 1953, and the second since December, 1947—a period in which many other products had taken several jumps.

The American Petroleum Institute says that the price of East Texas crude oil is now 22.6 per cent higher than in 1948 and 12.1 per cent higher than in 1953. (The price of milk in New York City, incidentally, also has gone up 12 per cent since June 1953.)

Based on the average price, before taxes, in 50 cities, the API says the price of gasoline is 15.5 per cent higher than in 1948 and 6 per cent higher than in 1953. Looking at the costs of producing crude oil, the API reports that hourly earnings in the industry have advanced 53 per cent over 1948 and 15.4 per cent over 1953.

The Independent Petroleum Assn. of America says the cost of finding and developing crude oil increased 35 per cent since the last price hike June 1953.

The oilman cites these costs as the reason for the price rise, rather than the windfall of sudden European demand.

More than 5,000 communities throughout the nation, Circleville among them, will conduct Heart Sunday collections on February 24.

TAGGING THE REDS

IN A REPORT covering 1956 the House Committee on un-American Activities makes the arresting statement that the communists have now on U.S. soil "the equivalent of 20 combat divisions of enemy troops engaging in propaganda, espionage, subversion and loyal only to the Soviet Union."

Periodic pretenses by communist leaders in America that they have, or are about to, cast off from Moscow and become independent are, of course, only efforts to throw dust in the eyes of the American people.

Some observers of world affairs have come to the conclusion that Moscow must fight a world war to save itself. The effort will be vain, it is assumed, and the red tyrants will be sunk into lowest oblivion. But it is evident that if such a war is inevitable, the U. S. must be on guard to reduce possible subversion on the home front to the lowest point.

The House committee has distributed an 80-page brochure detailing its findings and supplying a list of alleged subversive organizations. If there is new information in this the government should act upon it without delay. If not, the public can only assume that the potential red saboteurs are tagged and numbered, ready to be put where they belong at the first sign of trouble.

VACANCY ON HIGH COURT

RETIREMENT of Justice Stanley Reed brings to an end the Supreme Court career of one of the Roosevelt appointed members of the high tribunal.

Justice Reed, who is 72, has been on the bench 19 years. He went to Washington as an attorney for the Farm Board in the Hoover administration. He moved up through several agencies to the position of Solicitor General, second highest legal position in the Department of Justice.

During his years in the Roosevelt administration in the 1930s Reed was noted as a defender and promoter of New Deal reforms.

The successor to Reed will be President Eisenhower's fourth appointment to the court. He has named Chief Justice Warren and Justices Harlan and Brennan.

There appears to be a likelihood that the President will be given the opportunity to appoint successors to Justices Black and Frankfurter, both of whom are not well. When this happens the court will be composed of predominantly Ike-men.

STORIES DON'T JIBE

OVER THE YEARS in which it laid claim to every invention man's mind has ever turned out, the Soviet Union invented the claim that communist rule has eliminated unemployment. Recently this was echoed by the central statistical board in Russia when it announced, "Last year, as in previous years, there was no unemployment in this country."

The trouble is the Russians haven't invented a way to get together in the stories they tell. The other day the newspaper Literary Gazette called upon the government to establish a central agency to list job opportunities. The paper complained that "very often" persons look for jobs for

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Dr. Joza Brilej, Yugoslav Ambassador to the United Nations, was blithely driving his car west on 66th Street in New York. He went through a red light; he bumped into another car; he went up on the sidewalk, killed Mrs. Ruth La Bartunek who was gently minding her own business but who was pinned against a building by this Yugoslav Ambassador's car which he was driving.

Dr. Brilej was quite sorry and sent some emissaries to the La Bartunek family to ask if he could contribute to the funeral expenses. Beyond that he had no responsibility because he is entitled to diplomatic immunity by which is meant that he lives in our midst under extraterritoriality and is not subject to our laws.

It is legal for him and for a few hundred other people connected with the United Nations to go through red lights. The police cannot arrest him because he has diplomatic immunity. He can bump into another car and damage it but nothing can be done about that; he cannot even be sued for damages because he is not subject to our laws.

He can kill a woman, a mother of five children, but he cannot be arrested for murder or for reckless driving; the police may not investigate whether he was drunk or sober when he lost control of his car; the police may not even inquire as to whether he had a license to drive a car. He is a big shot, an Ambassador and enjoys extraterritoriality which includes the right to kill a woman going into a grocery store.

Of course, a man may be a diplomat and a gentleman, too. That has happened. Such a person would obey the traffic regulations of the place where he happened to be stationed because a gentleman does not take advantage of his position. But it is too much to expect of the folks who have been thrown into high position by war and revolution that they would even know the meaning of noblesse oblige. So they go through red lights.

They park their cars in front of fire hydrants. They double park and triple park to the inconvenience of tax-paying Americans and now one has actually run down and killed an American woman. He killed her on a sidewalk as she was walking into a store.

It is an easy-going, soft people that takes that sort of thing lying down. There was a time when Americans were less refined and when somebody's fist would have settled this question of diplomatic immunity. What happens to all these heroes in our Westerns which millions follow every day on television, these heroic characters who protect womanhood and motherhood and virtue? Do they not inculcate a sense of obligation to stand up for what is right? Or must we let these frisky Ambassadors imperil our lives and children while they break every traffic law with cars bearing DPL license plates? DPL, indeed!

The least the State Department can do is to notify the Yugoslav Ambassador that the streets of New York City are closed to him. He can remain in the United Nations building as long as Tito wants to keep him there, but he has committed a homicide on New York streets and the streets are closed to him.

month on end and have to make the rounds of one factory after another in search of openings.

Perhaps in the Soviet Union one must serve an apprenticeship in idleness before graduating into unemployment — red style, that is. And the thought occurs that if the apprenticeship were made long enough, no one could live to qualify as unemployed.

Unneeded Transfusions May Sometimes Be Fatal

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CERTAIN routine blood transfusions given in hospitals throughout the nation might be unnecessary. In some cases, injection of unneeded blood can be extremely harmful—even fatal.

In fact, not long ago at a meeting in Chicago of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, Dr. William Freeman said that tests indicated that certain patients who normally would have been given additional blood by transfusion had more than enough to start with. However, these cases are the exception to the rule.

Total Quantity
Until quite recently, doctors have had no accurate method of measuring the total blood quantity of a patient. Instead, we have had to estimate the amount of blood circulating through the system by time-consuming analyses of elements of the blood, plasma and cells.

But now, by injecting radioactive iodine into the blood stream, and with the aid of the laboratory, doctors can come up with a pretty accurate measurement. With a sensitized geiger-counting machine, they can tell where this iodine is in the blood stream, where it is going and how much it has been diluted.

The extent of the dilution reveals the total amount of circulating blood.

Using this method of determining the need for blood, Dr. Freeman checked 300 seriously ill or post-operative patients who might have been given routine blood transfusions on the basis of usual tests.

Transfusions, he reports, would have been wasted on 75 per cent of them. In cases of arteriosclerosis or impaired heart, addition of superfluous amounts of blood can even at times cause death by exerting excessive pressure on the artery walls. This might overstrain the heart.

Inadequate Supply
Generally, it is believed that loss of blood during operations or childbirth frequently leaves a patient with an inadequate supply of blood which can be restored through transfusions.

However, Dr. Freeman says, his studies show that a number of patients actually have over-supplies of blood and blood fractions. All of which certainly seems to indicate that tests of the total blood volume should be made whenever possible before giving a transfusion. That is just what most doctors are doing today.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
D. B. I have been losing weight and coughing up blood. Could these be tuberculosis symptoms?

Answer: One of the first symptoms of tuberculosis are fatigue and loss of weight. There is a loss of appetite, which is followed by coughing, expectoration, more loss of weight, fever and night sweats.

CHAPTER 33

A DULL gray morning in early April brought to Chad Endicott his first real problem of command. He was making a late morning visit to see the men who were sick. Corporal Dickinson greeted him at the doorway of the low-ceilinged, dark building that housed the men on the sick list. "Morning, sir. Ready for inspection."

Chad stood staring down at the sick men, trying to think of something cheerful, something hopeful, to tell them. Then Zack Cubberly raced in through the doorway and yelled, "God a-mighty, Lootenant, come a-run-nin'!" He wheeled and ran out of the sickroom, Chad a step behind him.

Zack headed for the mess hall. As they approached the long, low building with its iron triangle hanging by the door, Chad could hear what appeared to be a violent commotion going on inside.

Zack jerked the door open and lunged into the room, Chad behind him. They were greeted by a scene of turmoil and destruction. Mess tables had been overturned, a giant iron kettle which had apparently contained stew was lying on its side, the contents running out on the rough plank floor, and men were milling around in all directions.

When Sergeant Anderson saw Chad, he dutifully yelled, "Attention!" but his voice was lost in the pandemonium. As Chad rambled his way toward the end of the mess hall, he saw that four or five men were trying to hold another soldier down on his back. Arms and legs were so mixed up that it was impossible to tell the number of participants, or what they were trying to accomplish.

Beyond the men on the floor, in a back corner, was one of the cooks, brandishing two enormous knives threateningly at half a dozen men attempting to close in on him.

The cook let out a scream and leaped at the men facing him, slashing wildly with his knives. One of the soldiers caught a blade squarely across the shoulder and his uniform opened as if by magic, blood gushing from the wound. The other men threw themselves on the screaming, struggling cook and brought him down, arms and legs thrashing wildly. Chad had a look at his face just as he went down and he was sure the man was completely insane. In a moment, the mess hall was relatively quiet. The cook was breathing so hard that his inhalings and exhalings sounded like a hoarse moan.

"All right, men," Chad said sharply. "What happened?"

© 1956, Bourey & Curl, Inc., publishers of the new novel. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Corporal Tolliver tucked in his blouse and mopped back his hair with a quick, nervous gesture. He was one of those who had just overpowered the cook. He said, "Cookie went off his rocker, sir. I think we'd better lock him up for a while. He's gonna hurt somebody."

"What started it?" Chad demanded.

"Well, sir, Duncan here said somethin' 'bout the grub." Tolliver pointed at the man the others had pinioned to the floor, when Chad had entered.

"Then what?"

"Dunno, sir. It just started a ruckus. Got to yellin' at each other and Cookie threw a ladle of stew at Duncan and Duncan hit him in the face with his mess kit. Then Cookie went for his knives and then some of us jumped in and tried to keep 'em from killin' each other."

Chad swung around to Sergeant Anderson. "Get this man some medical attention." He pointed to the soldier who had been cut by the knife and was now standing quietly with his arm hanging limply at his side. "Then lock Ridgely up." Chad nodded at the cook, who was still pinned to the floor. "Lock Duncan up, too. When I get ready to see them, I'll tell you. Tolliver, get hold of Mullvane. I want the men mustered at once."

Chad turned sharply on his heel and strode out of the mess hall. He went directly to his office and, slamming the door behind him, crossed the small, dingy room and sat down at his desk. By the time Mullvane knocked, Chad's mind was made up.

Mullvane saluted, and said, "The men are ready, sir."

"Thanks, Sergeant, I'll be right out," Chad said.

When he stepped outside, the men were drawn up on the little square that was called the Parade Ground. As Chad approached, Mullvane bellowed, "Tenshun!" and the men stiffened, chins up, shoulders squared.

Mullvane saluted smartly and said, "Company's ready, sir." Chad returned the salute. He said, "Tell the men to stand at ease, Sergeant." The lines of men loosened up. Chad folded his hands behind him, and stood with his legs apart, his thoughts turning briefly to Randall. When the Colonel was alive, he could be blamed for anything that went wrong. Now there was no one except Chad Endicott.

"What I have to say won't take long," Chad said, "but I want you to know I mean every word of it. A little while ago we had a scene in the mess hall. We will not have another demonstration of that kind at Fort Butterfield. I am perfectly aware of the conditions under which we live. I don't like them, either. The food is bad, but I have to eat it, too. It's all we have. And no matter what the reason is for the situation, it can't be helped now. We've had a rough winter and it's not over, but it will be, and we'll make it. In the meantime, we're going to act like soldiers, every man of us."

Chad turned to Mullvane. "Sergeant, these men will remain in formation. You and Sergeant Anderson will hang first. Duncan and then Ridgely to that post by their wrists, and you will find a strong man who will give them fifteen lashes. This will be carried out immediately."

Mullvane, his face expressionless, said evenly, "Yes, sir."

"That's all, Mullvane."

"Yes, sir," Mullvane saluted, and Chad returned it.

Chad went back to his office and dropped into the chair behind his desk. Before him were several papers bearing the printed heading, "Monthly Report." Wearily he picked one up and began to work. He studied the form for a few minutes, then he dipped his pen in the ink and began to write, slowly, in a column headed "Record of Events."

"Seven men ill with scurvy. Food supplies running low. No tactical practice held. Ammunition inadequate. No unusual occurrences. Routine matters only."

Outside, he heard a resounding thud, and then another, thud, thud, thud. Presently the noise of the strap stopped. Duncan was probably being cut down. Ridgely would be next. In a few moments the sound started again. Thud, thud, thud. Chad tensed again, and when the noise stopped he slumped down in his chair.

How he hated Randall for his disciplinary attempts! How he had mentally railed at Randall when the Colonel launched into one of his speeches about "soldiering!" Chad had often told himself that such things were well and good at some sleepy post along the Atlantic—but out here, under these conditions, with the men scurvy-ridden and starving, no.

Yet here he was, filling Randall's shoes. Randall, even in his drunken moments, had talked about responsibility and its burdens. Well, Chad had them now. It was his company, and he was the commanding officer.

Lieutenant Endicott folded his arms, put his head down, and cried.

Chad doesn't know it, but his sweetheart, Elizabeth, is nearing tumultuous times, too. Read about her tomorrow in Chapter 34.

Only Amos, The Dog, Knows --By Hal Boyle

LOOKING BACK on a splendid two-week vacation here, I wondered as we flew away what we would remember most about it.

The food that put extra pounds on us, the fish that got away, the Goombay music that makes Calypso seem pale, the friendly natives, the yachts we admitted but had no desire to own, the night, the sun, sand, surf and star tan?

No, none, I guess the most memorable thing was the fact a dog bit our daughter.

After people get a certain age what happens to them isn't really quite as important as what happens to younger people they are interested in.

Since Tracy Ann came to our house to stay at the age of 5 weeks, we have cruised or flown her south four winter vacations in a row. When you have children of your own, perhaps you can go away and have a good time without them. But when a child adopts you, you dare not leave her behind. She might adopt someone else in your absence; she holds you prisoner in a love mixed with terror.

On three previous cruises I had successfully managed to keep her from throwing herself overboard trying to catch flying fish.

But now, with her growing on 4 years old, I felt it was time for her to learn life has its bumps as well as milk bottles, and perhaps I relaxed a bit.

Here's what happened:

As we were strolling along I saw ahead a black and white terrier standing guard at the green edge where the turf of his master's home touched the road. The dog was named Amos.

Sometimes you can sense the hidden temper of a dog by his posture as you can that of a strange person, before he begins to move, and I called sharply to Tracy, "Stay away from the doggy."

Tracy has been told many times never to run up to a strange animal or touch it until it has first come and nosed her.

But she had her own mind about love. If a grownup asks her for a sign of affection, she will tease and grow coy. Yet she really has a blind faith that all things on earth love her. And, since few wise dogs court strange children, she goes all out for them herself.

She will run up and hug any strange animal from a turtle to a great dane.

To return to what happened: A native came by and I turned to ask him a question, and in that second Tracy galloped to Amos and reached out her arms and— "Yipe!" The deed was done. Tracy reeled back yelling and holding one arm. Amos backed deeper toward his house, nervous, uncertain, tail down.

A newly arrived British doctor, a veteran of the Tunisian campaign, who undoubtedly had seen worse wounds, swabbed Tracy's purple bruise and bandaged it as she sobbed. "He's a bad dog!"

The very next day when we were out walking we saw Amos, some distance from home. As he started to crouch away, Tracy tried to run up and throw her arms around him again.

"Don't you know he's a bad dog?" I asked, holding her.

"He is not a bad doggie. Amos is a good doggie," she said. And then as my grip tightened on her and I refused to let her risk a second bite from Amos, she flung at me: "You're a bad man!"

I wanted then to let her go and see if her stubborn love could win Amos.

But I looked from her to Amos, and I knew I couldn't be sure, because if Amos hurt her again I knew I would hurt him forever.

So I held Tracy, warm and struggling and crying, "Let me go!" and felt for the first time really the lonely responsibility of a parent trying to do his duty against the will of his child.

And was Tracy wrong? Only Amos really knows.

TAGGING THE REDS

IN A REPORT covering 1956 the House Committee on un-American Activities makes the arresting statement that the communists have now on U.S. soil "the equivalent of 20 combat divisions of enemy troops engaging in propaganda, espionage, subversion and loyal only to the Soviet Union."

Periodic pretenses by communist leaders in America that they have, or are about to, cast off from Moscow and become independent are, of course, only efforts to throw dust in the eyes of the American people.

Some observers of world affairs have come to the conclusion that Moscow must fight a world war to save itself. The effort will be vain, it is assumed, and the red tyrants will be sunk into lowest oblivion. But it is evident that if such a war is inevitable, the U. S. must be on guard to reduce possible subversion on the home front to the lowest point.

The House committee has distributed an 80-page brochure detailing its findings and supplying a list of alleged subversive organizations. If there is new information in this the government should act upon it without delay. If not, the public can only assume that the potential red saboteurs are tagged and numbered, ready to be put where they belong at the first sign of trouble.

VACANCY ON HIGH COURT

RETIREMENT of Justice Stanley Reed brings to an end the Supreme Court career of one of the Roosevelt appointed members of the high tribunal.

Justice Reed, who is 72, has been on the bench 19 years. He went to Washington as an attorney for the Farm Board in the Hoover administration. He moved up through several agencies to the position of Solicitor General, second highest legal position in the Department of Justice.

During his years in the Roosevelt administration in the 1930s Reed was noted as a defender and promoter of New Deal reforms.

The successor to Reed will be President Eisenhower's fourth appointment to the court. He has named Chief Justice Warren and Justices Harlan and Brennan.

There appears to be a likelihood that the President will be given the opportunity to appoint successors to Justices Black and Frankfurter, both of whom are not well. When this happens the court will be composed of predominantly Ike-men.

STORIES DON'T JIBE

OVER THE YEARS in which it laid claim to every invention man's mind has ever turned out, the Soviet Union invented the claim that communist rule has eliminated unemployment. Recently this was echoed by the central statistical board in Russia when it announced, "Last year, as in previous years, there was no unemployment in this country."

The trouble is the Russians haven't invented a way to get together in the stories they tell. The other day the newspaper Literary Gazette called upon the government to establish a central agency to list job opportunities. The paper complained that "very often" persons look for jobs for

These Days

Dr. Joza Brilej, Yugoslav Ambassador to the United Nations, was blithely driving his car west on 66th Street in New York. He went through a red light; he bumped into another car; he went up on the sidewalk, killed Mrs. Ruth La Bartunek who was gently minding her own business but who was pinned against a building by this Yugoslav Ambassador's car which he was driving.

Dr. Brilej was quite sorry and sent some emissaries to the La Bartunek family to ask if he could contribute to the funeral expenses. Beyond that he had no responsibility because he is entitled to diplomatic immunity by which is meant that he lives in our midst under extraterritoriality and is not subject to our laws.

It is legal for him and for a few hundred other people connected with the United Nations to go through red lights. The police cannot arrest him because he has diplomatic immunity. He can bump into another car and damage it but nothing can be done about that; he cannot even be sued for damages because he is not subject to our laws.

He can kill a woman, a mother of five children, but he cannot be arrested for murder or for reckless driving; the police may not investigate whether he was drunk or sober when he lost control of his car; the police may not even inquire as to whether he had a license to drive a car. He is a big shot, an Ambassador and enjoys extraterritoriality which includes the right to kill a woman going into a grocery store.

Of course, a man may be a diplomat and a gentleman, too. That has happened. Such a person would obey the traffic regulations of the place where he happened to be stationed because a gentleman does not take advantage of his position. But it is too much to expect of the folks who have been thrown into high position by war and revolution that they would even know the meaning of noblesse oblige. So they go through red lights.

They park their cars in front of fire hydrants. They double park and triple park to the inconvenience of tax-paying Americans and now one has actually run down and killed an American woman. He killed her on a sidewalk as she was walking into a store.

It is an easy-going, soft people that takes that sort of thing lying down. There was a time when Americans were less refined and when somebody's fist would have settled this question of diplomatic immunity. What happens to all these heroes in our Westerns which millions follow every day on television, these heroic characters who protect womanhood and motherhood and virtue? Do they not inculcate a sense of obligation to stand up for what is right? Or must we let these frisky Ambassadors imperil our lives and children while they break every traffic law with cars bearing DPL license plates? DPL, indeed!

The least the State Department can do is to notify the Yugoslav Ambassador that the streets of New York City are closed to him. He can remain in the United Nations building as long as Tito wants to keep him there, but he has committed a homicide on New York streets and the streets are closed to him.

month on end and have to make the rounds of one factory after another in search of openings.

Perhaps in the Soviet Union one must serve an apprenticeship in idleness before graduating into unemployment — red style, that is. And the thought occurs that if the apprenticeship were made long enough, no one could live to qualify as unemployed.

Unneeded Transfusions May Sometimes Be Fatal

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CERTAIN routine blood transfusions given in hospitals ill or post-operative patients who throughout the nation might be unnecessary. In some cases, injection of unneeded blood can be extremely harmful—even fatal.

In fact, not long ago at a meeting in Chicago of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, Dr. William Freeman said that tests indicated that certain patients who normally would have been given additional blood by transfusion had more than enough to start with. However, these cases are the exception to the rule.

Total Quantity

Until quite recently, doctors have had no accurate method of measuring the total blood quantity of a patient. Instead, we have had to estimate the amount of blood circulating through the system by time-consuming analyses of elements of the blood, plasma and cells.

But now, by injecting radioactive iodine into the blood stream, and with the aid of the laboratory, doctors can come up with a pretty accurate measurement. With a sensitized geiger-counting machine, they can tell where this iodine is in the blood stream, where it is going and how much it has been diluted.

The extent of the dilution reveals the total amount of circulating blood.

Using this method of determining the need for blood, Dr.

Freeman checked 300 seriously ill or post-operative patients who might have been given routine blood transfusions on the basis of usual tests.

Transfusions, he reports, would have been wasted on 75 per cent of them. In cases of arteriosclerosis or impaired heart, addition of superfluous amounts of blood can even at times cause death by exerting excessive pressure on artery walls. This might overstrain the heart.

Inadequate Supply

Generally, it is believed that loss of blood during operations or childbirth frequently leaves a patient with an inadequate supply of blood which can be restored through transfusions. However, Dr. Freeman says, his studies show that a number of patients actually have over-supplies of blood and blood fractions. All of which certainly seems to indicate that tests of the total blood volume should be made whenever possible before giving a transfusion. That is just what most doctors are doing today.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

D.B.: I have been losing weight and coughing up blood. Could these be tuberculosis symptoms? Answer: One of the first symptoms of tuberculosis are fatigue and loss of weight. There is a loss of appetite, which is followed by coughing, expectoration, more loss of weight, fever and night sweats.

CHAPTER 33

A DULL gray morning in early April brought to Chad Endicott his first real problem of command. He was making a late morning visit to see the men who were sick. Corporal Dickinson greeted him at the doorway of the low-ceilinged, dark building that housed the men on the sick list. "Morning, sir. Ready for inspection?"

Chad stood staring down at the sick men, trying to think of something cheerful, something hopeful, to tell them. Then Zack Cubberly raced in through the doorway and yelled, "God a-mighty, Lieutenant, come a-run-nin'!" He wheeled and ran out of the sickroom, Chad a step behind him.

Zack headed for the mess hall. As they approached the long, low building with its iron triangle hanging by the door, Chad could hear what appeared to be a violent commotion going on inside.

Zack jerked the door open and lunged into the room, Chad behind him. They were greeted by a scene of turmoil and destruction. Mess tables had been overturned, a giant iron kettle which had apparently contained stew was lying on its side, the contents running out on the rough plank floor, and men were milling around in all directions.

When Sergeant Anderson saw Chad, he dutifully yelled, "Attention!" but his voice was lost in the pandemonium. As Chad rapped his way toward the end of the mess hall, he saw that four or five men were trying to hold another soldier down on his back. Arms and legs were so mixed up that it was impossible to tell the number of participants, or what they were trying to accomplish.

Beyond the men on the floor, in a back corner, was one of the cooks, brandishing two enormous knives threateningly at half a dozen men attempting to close in on him.

The cook let out a scream and leaped at the men facing him, slashing wildly with his knives. One of the soldiers caught a blade squarely across the shoulder and his uniform opened as if by magic, blood gushing from the wound. The other men threw themselves on the screaming, struggling cook and brought him down, arms and legs thrashing wildly. Chad had a look at his face just as he went down and he was sure the man was completely insane. In a moment, the mess hall was relatively quiet. The cook was breathing so hard that his inhalings and exhalings sounded like a hoarse moan.

"All right, men," Chad said sharply. "What happened?"

© 1956, Bourgey & Curt, Inc., publishers of the new novel. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Corporal Tolliver tucked in his blouse and mopped back his hair with a quick, nervous gesture. He was one of those who had just overpowered the cook. He said, "Cookie went off his rocker, sir. I think we'd better lock him up for a while. He's gonna hurt somebody."

"What started it?" Chad demanded. "Well, sir, Duncan here said somethin' 'bout the grub," Tolliver pointed at the man the others had pinned to the floor, when Chad had entered.

"Then what?" "Dunno, sir. It just started a ruckus. Got to yellin' at each other and Cookie threw a ladle of stew at Duncan and Duncan hit him in the face with his mess kit. Then Cookie went for his knives and then some of us jumped in and tried to keep 'em from killin' each other."

Chad swung around to Sergeant Anderson. "Get this man some medical attention." He pointed to the soldier who had been cut by the knife and was now standing quietly with his arm hanging limply at his side. "Then lock Ridgely up." Chad nodded at the cook, who was still pinned to the floor. "Lock Duncan up, too. When I get ready to see them, I'll tell you. Tolliver, get hold of Mullvane. I want the men mustered at once."

Chad turned sharply on his heel and strode out of the mess hall. He went directly to his office and, slamming the door behind him, crossed the small, dingy room and sat down at his desk. By the time Mullvane knocked, Chad's mind was made up.

Mullvane saluted, and said, "The men are ready, sir."

"Thanks, Sergeant, I'll be right out," Chad said. When he stepped outside, the men were drawn up on the little square that was called the Parade Ground. As Chad approached, Mullvane bowed, "Tension!" and the men stiffened, chin up, shoulders squared.

Mullvane saluted smartly and said, "Company's ready, sir." Chad returned the salute. He said, "Tell the men to stand at ease, Sergeant." The lines of men loosened up. Chad folded his hands behind him, and stood with his legs apart, his thoughts turning briefly to Randall. When the Colonel was alive, he could be blamed for anything that went wrong. Now there was no one except Chad Endicott.

"What I have to say won't take long," Chad said, "but I want you to know I mean every word of it. A little while ago we had a scene in the mess hall. We will not have another demonstration of that kind at Fort Butterfield. I am perfectly aware of

A newly arrived British doctor, a veteran of the Tunisian campaign, who undoubtedly had seen worse wounds, swabbed Tracy's purple bruise and bandaged it as she sobbed, "He's a bad dog!"

The very next day when we were out walking we saw Amos, some distance from home. As he started to crouch away, Tracy tried to run up and throw her arms around him again.

"Don't you know he's a bad dog?" I asked, holding her.

"He is not a bad doggie. Amos is a good doggie," she said. And then as my grip tightened on her and I refused to let her risk a second bite from Amos, she flung at me: "You're a bad man!"

I wanted then to let her go and see if her stubborn love could win Amos.

But I looked from her to Amos, and I knew I couldn't be sure, because if Amos hurt her again I knew I would hurt him forever.

So I held Tracy, warm and struggling and crying, "Let me go!" and felt for the first time really the lonely responsibility of a parent trying to do his duty against the will of his child.

And was Tracy wrong? Only Amos really knows.

53 Courageous Convicts Continue Their Cancer Test

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"It's like the boy scout helping the old lady across a dangerous street. We're trying to help a lot of people across the street."

The "street" which the 30-year-old convict from Asheville, N. C., had in mind was cancer. He was about to take part in an experiment requiring human guinea pigs in the great medical hunt for a cure or prevention of the disease.

The young southerner, who had come to Cleveland to work in a foundry but got into enough trouble to land him behind bars, was quietly sitting on a pew-like bench with a group of other prisoners.

He glanced around the room containing a dozen similar benches, a television set with a "hands off" sign, an ancient upright piano, an American flag, two covered pool tables, sofas and some roped-off tables at which other inmates were eating. The scene was a first-floor room in an Ohio Penitentiary building called "Recreation Hall—Recreation Area."

A few minutes later he walked upstairs to a sparsely-furnished room where a cancer research specialist implanted live cancer cells under the skin of his forearm.

Why did they volunteer? Some answers were supplied when Warden Alvis let newsmen interview the inmates. No questions about names, prison numbers, or crimes were permitted.

A 46-year-old convict from Columbus put it this way:

"I've been in so much trouble all my life, and this is the first time I've ever done anything good."

Surgery Seen 'Changing' Sex Of Youth, 20

NEW YORK (AP)—A 20-year-old youth is in a hospital reportedly "eager" to undergo court approved surgery that may change him into a woman.

He is Roland George Diaz, Jamaica, N.Y., who was released from the Elmira, N.Y., reformatory Wednesday on condition that he undergo surgery.

Doctors at the reformatory reported that he showed increasing signs of turning from a man to a woman and recommended surgery to complete the transformation.

Diaz had been under medical observation at Elmira since May 24 when Wueens County Judge John P. Donohoe sentenced him to an indeterminate term for supplying guns to three men for a grocery store holdup.

Diaz had appeared on the court record as neither male nor female but as "the person."

Wednesday, Anthony di Paola, assistant Queens County district attorney, said, he received a letter from doctors at the Elmira reformatory reporting that Diaz's characteristics, both physically and psychologically, appeared to be turning more effeminate.

Di Paola ordered the boy brought before Judge Donohoe who suspended the sentence.

Di Paola said Diaz was "eager" to go ahead with the transformation. He entered New York Hospital Wednesday, where surgery is expected to take place shortly.

Impersonator Still Facing Uncertainties

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP)—The future of impostor Ferdinand W. DeMara Jr.—whose impersonations have run the gamut from surgeon to high school teacher—remains a question mark today.

The 250-pound, 35-year-old Lawrence, Mass., man pleaded guilty Friday to cheating by claiming he had a college degree when he obtained a state teachers license to instruct at a 40-pupil school at North Haven Island. He was given a suspended six months sentence and placed on probation for two years.

DeMara said he would investigate a job offer as a reporter on the Chatham (Ontario) Daily News.

DeMara's most celebrated impersonation was that of a New Brunswick physician. Under the doctor's name he joined the Canadian navy and was credited with performing considerable surgery before being discovered.

His medical education was fragmentary.

Concerning possible return to the tiny Penobscot Bay island community where he had been a teacher of English, Latin and French since last fall, DeMara said:

"I appreciate their trust, but under the circumstances it would be rather useless to go back. I would be much less effective than I had been."

In handing down a verdict on DeMara's case Friday, Judge Armand A. DuFresne Jr. commented:

"The court feels that if the record were being read as the accomplishments of somebody who had credentials, everybody here would applaud."

Ohio University Observing Its 153rd Birthday Quietly

ATHENS (AP)—Ohio University, oldest educational institution in the old Northwest Territory, was quietly celebrating its 153rd birthday here today.

The school's founders' day celebration will honor two men whose pioneering interest greatly influenced the establishment of the institution.

The two, the Rev. Manasseh Cutler and Gen. Rufus Putnam were present on March 1, 1786, when a group of Revolutionary War veterans gathered in Boston to form the Ohio Company for the settlement of the Northwest Territory.

Even during early discussions of the company, the need for higher education in the frontier land was recognized.

Cutler and Putnam insisted on a provision for higher education in the Ohio Territory when the national legislature was preparing the Northwest Ordinance. As early as 1800, Cutler had prepared a model charter for the proposed university.

On Feb. 18, 1804, a year after Ohio was admitted as a state, the Ohio State Legislature adopted the charter which created Ohio University.

In honor of the anniversary, the university library will feature a display of photographs, documents and historical items from the institution's past.

"We hope that the display which we put out for the students will enable them to catch a glimpse of the vision which Cutler and Putnam had. We hope that by viewing the documents they can visualize how vast the dream of these founders must have been," said librarian Frank N. Jones.

The building which holds the administrative offices of the university is known as Cutler Hall. The

53 Courageous Convicts Continue Their Cancer Test

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"It's like the boy scout helping the old lady across a dangerous street. We're trying to help a lot of people across the street."

The "street" which the 30-year-old convict from Asheville, N. C., had in mind was cancer. He was about to take part in an experiment requiring human guinea pigs in the great medical hunt for a cure or prevention of the disease.

The young southerner, who had come to Cleveland to work in a foundry but got into enough trouble to land him behind bars, was quietly sitting on a pew-like bench with a group of other prisoners.

He glanced around the room containing a dozen similar benches, a television set with a "hands off" sign, an ancient upright piano, an American flag, two covered pool tables, sofas and some roped-off tables at which other inmates were eating. The scene was a first-floor room in an Ohio Penitentiary building called "Recreation Hall—Recreation Area."

A few minutes later he walked upstairs to a sparsely-furnished room where a cancer research specialist implanted live cancer cells under the skin of his forearm.

Fifty-two other penitentiary inmates — all volunteers — went through the same routine last Feb. 7. For 11 of them it was the third time, for 15 it was the second time. But it was the first time for 27 men.

You feel you're going to be a part of something that will help a lot," said the southerner. "I volunteered for the first test, but I was unlucky and wasn't called."

When Warden Ralph W. Alvis called for 25 volunteers last summer he got 150 men who wanted to take part in the cancer research sponsored jointly by the Sloan-Kettering Institute of New York City and the Ohio State University College of Medicine.

The over-all study is aimed at trying to find out whether man has a natural defense mechanism against cancer.

What manner of men are these who let a doctor wed millions of cancer cells to healthy ones in their bodies, to see what will happen?

They have one thing in common. They chalked up unusually good records while serving terms ranging from one year to life.

While it's never mentioned, some may feel their action won't hurt their chances when parole is considered.

They represent many occupations in civilian life and in the prison shops and dining room. There are young men in their early 20s and others who won't see 55 again. None receives special tests, although participation goes into his record.

Why did they volunteer? Some answers were supplied when Warden Alvis let newsmen interview the inmates. No questions about names, prison numbers, or crimes were permitted.

A 46-year-old convict from Columbus put it this way: "I've been in so much trouble all my life, and this is the first time I've ever done anything good."

My grandfather and grandmother both died of cancer."

A 38-year-old inmate of Dayton, Ohio, said simply, "The boy I was raised up with died of cancer."

"It didn't seem to bother my friends, so I thought I might as well volunteer," said a 35-year-old former Cleveland who got three injections at once.

Actually the research project began three years ago when 15 volunteer civilian patients with far advanced incurable cancer were implanted with cancer cells of types different from those killing them.

The cancer implants grew in 13 of these patients until they were removed, one to six weeks later. In four cases even after the implants had been cut away, cancer occurred again and continued to grow.

To the researchers this indicated cancer patients had no defense against other types of cancer.

Several scientists in recent years had live cancer cells injected into their bodies. Results indicated cancer cells could not grow in healthy humans.

But to learn if that were true, large-scale tests were needed. Ohio Penitentiary inmates were selected because of the ease with which any change in physical condition of the volunteers could be watched, and the ample medical facilities of the prison and Ohio State University.

There were 14 volunteers in the first test. About one-half came from families that knew cancer. Into their bodies went cancer cells the same as used with civilian patients.

Dr. Richard H. Brooks, prison medical director, tells of the results: "Within seven days, there was no sign of cancer in half the men. Cancers in some of the others were removed surgically for examination at intervals of two and three weeks. At the end of four weeks, implants that had not been surgically removed disappeared entirely. There has been no recurrence of cancer growth—in contrast to findings among the civilian patients."

A larger group of prisoners took part in the second phase of the study last fall. Those making a second trip got the same type of cancer cells as before.

A doctor said this was to determine whether their defense mechanisms against cancer were working more efficiently because of the first inoculation.

The researchers added a new twist to the third study this month. They want to know what will happen to a man after he gets another cancer cell injection—of a different type than first used.

Some of the inmates got one injection, some two and some three at a sort of atomic age "medicine show" recorded by newspapers, magazines, television cameras, newsmen and medical journals.

At least one more experiment is planned at the penitentiary, for a date not yet selected.

A 28-year-old volunteer from Michigan summed up a feeling surely shared by many of the others when he said:

"I'd be lying if I said I wasn't worried. You lie there on your bunk, knowing you have cancer in the arm, and just think. Boy, what you think about!"

Diaz had been under medical observation at Elmira since May 24 when Wueens County Judge John P. Donohoe sentenced him to an indeterminate term for supplying guns to three men for a grocery store holdup.

Diaz had appeared on the court record as neither male nor female but as "the person."

Ohio University Observing Its 153rd Birthday Quietly

ATHENS (AP)—Ohio University, oldest educational institution in the old Northwest Territory, was quietly celebrating its 153rd birthday here today.

The school's founders' day celebration will honor two men whose pioneering interest greatly influenced the establishment of the institution.

The two, the Rev. Manasseh Cutler and Gen. Rufus Putnam were present on March 1, 1786, when a group of Revolutionary War veterans gathered in Boston to form the Ohio Company for the settlement of the Northwest Territory.

On Feb. 18, 1804, a year after Ohio was admitted as a state, the Ohio State Legislature adopted the charter which created Ohio University.

In honor of the anniversary, the university library will feature a display of photographs, documents and historical items from the institution's past.

"We hope that the display which we put out for the students will enable them to catch a glimpse of the vision which Cutler and Putnam had. We hope that by viewing the documents they can visualize how vast the dream of these founders must have been," said librarian Frank N. Jones.

The building which holds the administrative offices of the university is known as Cutler Hall. The university-operated grade school is named for Gen. Putnam.

Today's 6,841 students are in striking contrast with the three that were first enrolled in the university. Ohio University has seven colleges and offers programs leading to the bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees.

University President John C. Baker said, "The students, faculty and administrative personnel of Ohio University will take this time to remember the pioneering spirit of its founders. We will rededicate ourselves to the cause of quality education for all who enter our halls. We will renew our faith in the mission that is Ohio University."

Surgery Seen 'Changing' Sex Of Youth, 20

NEW YORK (AP)—A 20-year-old youth is in a hospital reportedly "eager" to undergo court approved surgery that may change him into a woman.

He is Roland George Diaz, Jamaica, N.Y., who was released from the Elmira, N.Y., reformatory Wednesday on condition that he undergo surgery.

Doctors at the reformatory reported that he showed increasing signs of turning from a man to a woman and recommended surgery to complete the transformation.

Diaz had been under medical observation at Elmira since May 24 when Wueens County Judge John P. Donohoe sentenced him to an indeterminate term for supplying guns to three men for a grocery store holdup.

Diaz had appeared on the court record as neither male nor female but as "the person."

Wednesday, Anthony di Paola, assistant Queens County district attorney, said, he received a letter from doctors at the Elmira reformatory reporting that Diaz's characteristics, both physically and psychologically, appeared to be turning more effeminate.

Di Paola ordered the boy brought before Judge Donohoe who suspended the sentence.

Di Paola said Diaz was "eager" to go ahead with the transformation. He entered New York Hospital Wednesday, where surgery is expected to take place shortly.

What manner of men are these who let a doctor wed millions of cancer cells to healthy ones in their bodies, to see what will happen?

They have one thing in common. They chalked up unusually good records while serving terms ranging from one year to life.

While it's never mentioned, some may feel their action won't hurt their chances when parole is considered.

They represent many occupations in civilian life and in the prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — The disagreement between the United States and Israel comes down to this: the United States says, "Trust us to do our best." Israel says, "Thanks, but we want something more solid than good intentions."

That's the sum total of a week of words and notes exchanged between President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles and representatives of the Israeli government.

It would be nice for the United States and the United Nations—in their quest for Middle East peace—if Israel would withdraw its troops from Gaza and the Aqaba Gulf area, both of which it seized when it attacked Egypt last fall.

It might give Egyptian President Nasser that much less excuse for making trouble in the Middle East. The United States asked Israel to pull back its troops. The United Nations demanded it. Israel refused.

Israel says it won't budge until it gets guarantees that, once its troops are withdrawn, the United States or the United Nations guarantees to prevent Nasser from attacking Israel across Gaza or blockading Israeli shipping in the gulf.

No such guarantees have been given by either this country or the U.N. Dulles has talked vaguely of "support" for Israel if her troops pull back. But he's never explained exactly what he means by "support."

Eisenhower has said Israel should "rely upon the resolute support of all friends of justice." Since good intentions can get sabotaged or sidetracked, the Israelis aren't taking any chances.

And Israel remembers how helpless the United States has been so far in dealing with Nasser. But the American-Israeli week of words at least postponed for that long a showdown in the United Nations.

A week ago, just before the world organization was getting ready to consider sanctions against Israel if it still refused to budge, Dulles thought up the idea of making the American request to Israel.

Any attempt by the U.N. to use sanctions against Israel would be embarrassing for both the U. N. and the United States. The United States has, in Israel, at least one friend in the Middle East. This country helped create Israel.

But neither the United States nor the United Nations believes in trying to force every nation which disobeys U.N. resolutions to back down. Russia ignored the

Movie Director Seeks Dog With Kosher Appetite

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If you have a dog with a kosher appetite, there's a movie career waiting for him.

Director George Sidney says he needs a dog that will eat bagels, sour cream, lox and cheese blintzes.

"The dog, to co-star with Frank Sinatra, Kim Novak and Rita Hayworth in Columbia's 'Pal Joey' can be any breed or mixture thereof," Sidney said.

"The script calls for him to be Sinatra's pet—and eat the same kind of food—throughout the picture," he said.

Hollywood dogs so far have turned up their noses at the diet. "They want strictly horsemeat filets," Sidney bemoaned.

"One stipulation though," he added, "the dog must not mistake Sinatra for a bone—or a lamp-post."

General Sees Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe, was received in private audience Saturday by Pope Pius XII.

U.N. demand to get out of Hungary and the U.N. did nothing.

When Egypt first began blocking Israel shipping from the Suez Canal some years ago, the U.N. ordered an end to it. Egypt ignored the command and kept on blocking, which was why Israel now insists on guarantees before leaving the Aqaba area.

Since to use sanctions on Israel, but not on Russia or Egypt, would make the U.N. look a little hypocritical, and would leave other small nations open to the same treatment some other time, the U.N. may never try sanctions.

This whole situation was awkward for both this country and the U.N. To find a way out was, obviously, why Dulles stepped in by handing the Israeli ambassador on Feb. 11 a note which, made public Sunday, said:

"We believe that Israeli withdrawal from Gaza should be prompt and unconditional, leaving the future of the Gaza Strip to be worked out through the efforts and good offices of the United Nations."

"We believe the U.N. General Assembly and the secretary general should seek that the U.N. Emergency Force, in the exercise of its mission, move into this area and be on the boundary between Israel and the Gaza Strip."

That wasn't a guarantee of anything except an effort by the United States—an effort which might get nowhere—to try to get the U.N. to put its troops in between Egypt and Israel and prevent raids by Nasser.

That wasn't good enough for Israel which, in effect, is telling the United States and the United Nations to put up or shut up.

AFL-CIO Set For Probe Of Akron Setup

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—An AFL-CIO committee today opens an investigation of an interunion dispute which the Burt Manufacturing Co. of Akron says has caused it to lose a considerable amount of business.

Here for the probe will be three top-level labor leaders, including George Meany, AFL-CIO president; Joseph Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America, and George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

The special committee has the authority to make a decision for the AFL-CIO Executive Council, which ordered the probe at a meeting in Miami Beach, Fla., last month.

The fact-finding mission here is expected to have nationwide repercussions in the labor organization as there are 14 similar jurisdictional disputes in other parts of the country.

Under investigation is a dispute between the Sheet Metal Workers and United Steelworkers Unions. The sheet metal workers have refused to install ventilating equipment manufactured by Burt because it is made by members of the steelworkers union.

The USW has been bargaining agent for the 200 production employees of the Akron firm for 11 years.

Burt said it is losing business because it is being bypassed by contractors who want to avoid trouble having equipment installed.

The investigating committee's decision can be appealed to the entire executive council and from there to the AFL-CIO convention.

You will be visited by a neighbor on Sunday, February 24—a member of the Heart Sunday volunteer army. Have the welcome mat out. Be ready with a hearty handshake and a generous gift to the Heart Fund.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thirty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONOID, the amazing new laxative discovery, possesses COLONOID's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONOID's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONOID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONOID neither gags, bloats nor grips; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONOID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONOID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98c for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

It - is - a - Fact

Houses built the conventional way, using local labor and materials, cost no more, or even less, than the house partly assembled at a factory.

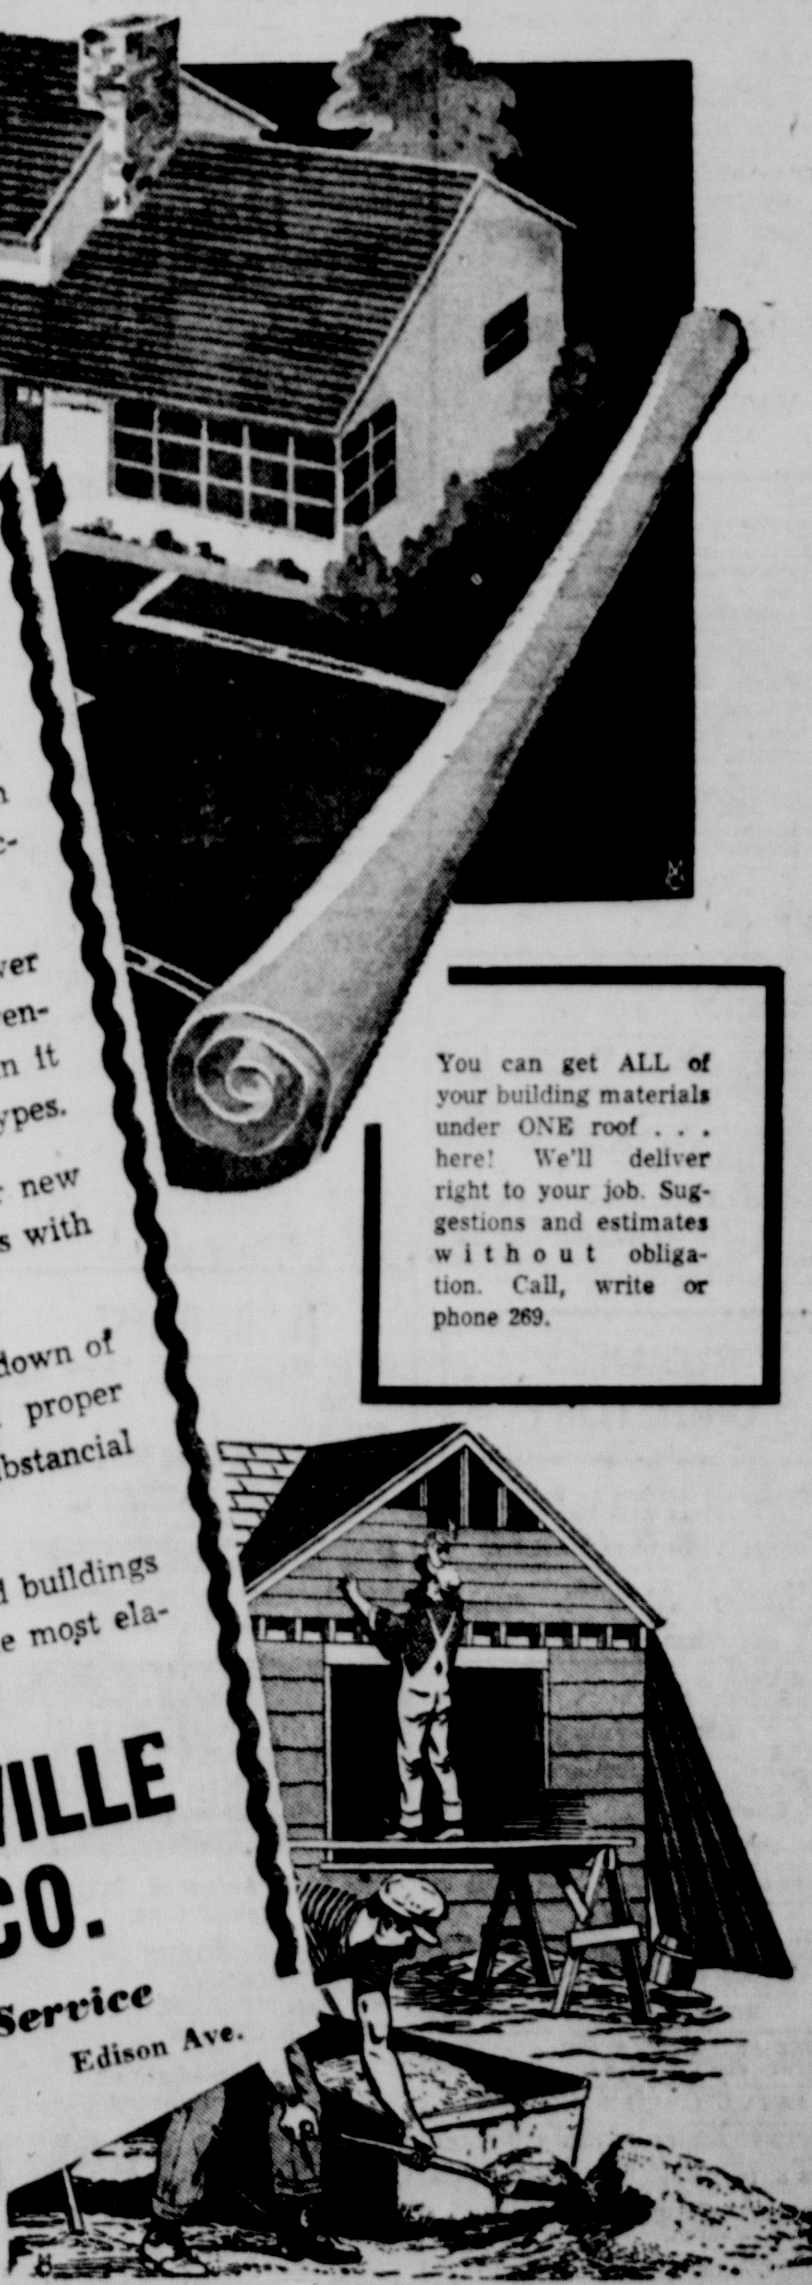

Local contractors, using new type power tools at the job site, are now erecting conventional constructed homes in less time than it takes to erect some of the prefabricated types.

Before you start to plan or build your new home, bring your problem, or plans to us without obligation —

We will give you an accurate break down of costs from basement to roof, with proper specifications to insure you a good substantial home when completed.

Our plan service covers house and buildings from the very low cost range to the most elaborate.

Pirates' Smith Leads County Cage Scorers

Unofficial tabulations show that Dave Smith of the Pickaway Pirates earned scoring honors in county basketball during regular season play with a total of 214 points for 10 league games.

Smith's steady scoring ability earned him a loop average of 21.4 points per game.

Glen Large of New Holland ended up second in the scoring race with 189 tallies. Ronnie Guthrie of Darby was third with 185, followed by Jim Stoer of Scioto with 183. Delbert Neff of Scioto rounded out the first five leaders with 180 tallies.

Regular season play ended in a three way deadlock with Darby, Scioto and Ashville sharing the honors.

COUNTY cage coaches are reminded that selections for the all-county team and balloting for the annual Bob Bowsler trophy should be mailed or brought to The Herald as soon as possible.

Indian Chief Plans Daring On Basepaths

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Kerby Farrell formally took command of the Cleveland Indians today with the promise that dust will fly in the basepaths of the Indian camp.

"I never saw a team win a pennant without having men who could go from first to third," Farrell declared. "That's what we're going to work on here — base running."

No longer, said the rookie manager, will a batter take his practice swings, then trot around the bases—a practice customary in major league training camps.

"After a man takes his last swing," Kerby told a reporter, "I want him to run to first, round the bag and stay there. Batting practice will be conducted under game conditions."

When a ball goes through the infield, Kerby added, "I want that runner to dig for third . . . and I mean dig!"

Farrell, noted for his hard-running teams in the minors, believes daring base running plays creates greater pressure on the defensive team and when pressure is applied, mistakes will be made by the opposition.

He had no training rules for his players except that "I want 'em to be in bed by midnight and I want 'em to be up in time for breakfast. Outside of that, they can make their own rules."

Eddie Olson, coach of Huntington, W. Va., in the International Hockey League, played nine seasons with St. Louis and Cleveland in the American Hockey League.

3 Teams Set For Berths In NCAA Tourney

Brigham Young, Idaho State, SMU In Line For College Playoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They may not have the "most est," but Brigham Young, Idaho State and Southern Methodist figure to be the "fastest" to nail berths in the NCAA university division basketball tournament.

All three can haul up conference pennants this week—while the rest of the major college hopefuls start a string of title showdowns.

BYU can become the first entry in next month's championship eliminations by defeating Utah Thursday and clinching the Sky-line title.

Idaho State can pick up its fifth consecutive Rocky Mountain championship with nothing more than a split against runner-up Western State in a Friday-Saturday pair.

And SMU's Mustangs, who had wait 17 years between Western Conference titles, can make it three in a row by disposing of last-place Texas A&M Tuesday night and then ousting runner-up Rice Saturday.

Here's how the other conference races shape up:

Atlantic Coast—Unbeaten North Carolina gets another chance to make up time against once-powerful North Carolina State tonight.

Far Heels have first place sewed up.

Southern—West Virginia (10-0) could clinch first place and No. 1 seeding in title tournament should runner-up Washington & Lee (7-2) lose to either Virginia Tech (8-4) Tuesday or William & Mary (6-8) Friday.

Southeastern—Air may clear a bit tonight when leader Kentucky (8-2) hosts runner-up Vanderbilt (8-3).

Big Ten—Indiana (7-2) leads with five victories in row, plays also-ran Iowa tonight.

Missouri Valley—Bradley (7-1) leads, plays at home against third place Wichita (7-2) tonight.

Big Seven—Kansas (6-1) and Kansas State (5-2) are the big guys, with Iowa State (5-4) a possible thorn in K-State's side. Kansas plays at home to last-place Oklahoma tonight. K-State is at Nebraska.

Pacific Coast—California (10-0), UCLA (9-1) and Washington (10-2) all alone.

Ivy—Yale (7-1) gets big test against third-place Columbia and Princeton (both 5-3) Wednesday and Saturday.

Fullmer Stated For Durando Bout

DENVER (AP) — Middleweight Champion Gene Fullmer expects to collect the second largest paycheck in his career — something over $8,000—for his non-title fight tonight with Ernie Durando, winner of two of his last three bouts.

The scheduled 10-round match has attracted an advance sale topping $20,000. Promoters expect near sellout in the Denver Auditorium which seats 7,300.

The West Jordan, Utah, welder will get 40 per cent. That'll be the most he's made boxing except for the $20,000 he collected in lifting the title from Sugar Ray Robinson last month in Madison Square Garden in New York City.

Last Big Week Facing Ohio's Collegiate Basketball Teams

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio college cagers head today into the last big week of the basketball campaign, with 49 games on tap by Saturday night.

After that, only 46 games are scheduled up to March 11, when Xavier ends the regular season at St. Francis, Pa.

Defiance has the Mid-Ohio League championship wrapped up, and Miami could take the title in the Mid-American this week, but the Ohio Conference scrap is wide open and could go to any of several quintets.

Wittenberg is the current leader of the sprawling 14-college circuit, but just how long the Lutherans can stay up there is the big question. The top rung is a precarious spot.

On Jan. 27 Denison led with 7-1, but lost to Wooster. That shoved Akron (4-1) out front the week-

Basilio Says He Plans To Score A KO

CLEVELAND (AP)—Welterweight boxing champion Carmen Basilio not only has dropped his request that six-ounce gloves be used in his third title match here Friday with Johnny Saxton, he has come right out and told the world he will knock Saxton out using eight-ounce gloves.

Six-ouncers were used when Basilio regained the title by knocking Saxton out in their last meeting at Syracuse. And six-ouncers were used when Saxton won on a decision in their first title match at Chicago.

But when Basilio's managers pleaded with the Cleveland Boxing Commission for six-ounce gloves to be used Friday night, the commission stood firm on a previously announced decision to use eight-ouncers in fights here. Basilio's managers threatened to appeal to National Boxing Assn. "higher-ups."

Basilio now has dropped his demand for the lighter mitts. "What's more," the champ declared, "you can tell the world I expect to knock out Saxton with the eight-ounce gloves."

Basilio was rated a 3-1 favorite to whip Saxton in their 15-round bout at Cleveland Arena.

Mary Faulk Leads Ladies PGA List

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Mary Lena Faulk, who has been playing for pay only 25 months, today holds the Ladies Professional Golfers Assn. record for 72 holes of play and is $880 richer from her victory in the St. Petersburg Open.

The tall young lady from Thomasville, Ga., turned in rounds of 71-67-73-68 for a total of 279 that smashed the LPGA record of 284, set by Marlene Bauer Hage at Denver in 1956. Men's par is 71 for the 6,116-yard course.

The 279 also was three strokes better than runner-up Louise Suggs. Miss Suggs received $616 of the $5,000 purse.

bit of strategy helped Cotton Owens to his record smashing victory Sunday in Nascar's 160-mile Grand National Circuit Race for strictly stock autos.

"I felt we were all pretty equal in there," the Spartanburg, S. C., garage owner said, "so I tried to set a pace which would force somebody out."

His pace was a blazing 101.6 miles an hour average in a 317-horsepower 1957 Pontiac. It killed off the only real challenger he had from the field of 57 starters—Paul Goldsmith of St. Clair Shores, Mich., jockeying a 283-horsepower fuel injection 1957 Chevrolet.

Herbert Collects Texas Open Purse

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Jay Herbert, the slender young pro from Louisiana, won the $20,000 Texas Open with "the only shot that would have done it."

Herbert, 34, playing out of Sanford, Fla., 3-ironed to the green on the 185-yard 18th hole at Brackenridge Park and sank a six-foot putt for a birdie to beat Ed Furgol, the St. Andrews, Ill., veteran, by a stroke Sunday. He had a 4-under-par 67 on the final round for a 72-hole total of 271-13 strokes under par.

"It takes a perfect shot on this hole," said Herbert as he accepted the $2,800 check to make him second to Doug Ford in money winnings of the year. "I made it."

3 Games Played In Ross Tourney

In three Ross County cage tournament games played Saturday night at the Circleville High school gym, Unioto beat Twin, Centralia downed Buckskin and Huntington took a decision over Southeastern.

Semi-finals get underway Wednesday in the CHS gym when Centralia clashes with Clarksburg at 7:30 p. m. and Unioto meets Huntington at 8:30 p. m.

Consolation and final games are slated for Friday.

Challdon, now famous as a sire, won the Pimlico Special twice and also won the Futurity and the Preakness over the Baltimore track.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

One of the most prosaic yet telltale bits of our Americana is the simple street name sign. History, hopes for the future, the arts, leading citizens—these are but a few of the many points of character a town is apt to wear on its sleeve for all to see.

In many towns, a schoolboy could learn the names of the nation's presidents by simply repeating the names of the streets. Lincoln, Washington, Madison, Jefferson, Harrison, Van Buren—common street names and a little more.

Nor are local heroes and heroines forgotten. In Madison, Wis., the streets Clyde Gallagher Avenue, Hilda Lonquist Drive and Esther Beach Road pass on the names of these local greats to posterity. Perhaps your town tells something of its industry or boasts of a local characteristic on its street signs. Is there a town in the state of Washington's apple empire that doesn't have its Apple Street?

SOUTHERN California's fruit belt towns are dotted with Orange Streets and Grape Boulevards. In the Midwest, you're likely to find Corn Avenue, Wheat Street and Alfalfa Drive with some regularity.

But for all the information the names of streets pass on, it is a rare town, indeed, that has signs that serve the basic function of location. In fact, most street signs are tucked away where they can't be seen at all.

Many towns paint street names on curbstones. In the fall, leaves hide the name; in the winter, there is snow; spring's rains do the damage in their own season, and the summer is spent repainting. Other cities rely on concrete posts at two or three feet high to act as cornerstones of information.

Better yet are those towns where the street sign is on a post six or eight feet high, right out for all the world to see. And some of the more progressive cities have signs especially made to be seen after dark. These signs can be read long before you get to the corner and give you plenty of time to locate your turn. There is no dangerous hesitating in intersections, no backing, no house-to-house inquiring—the new signs that can be read both day and night make visiting easier and safer.

History and local commerce are fine—but the street name signs should also tell us where to go.

These Days

Of course, the State Department will do no such thing because its personnel is made up of diplomats who do not speak rudely to diplomats and who believe in extraterritoriality because when they go to other countries, they live by it.

But Tito did not always practice it and as I recall, when our Ambassador to Yugoslavia was Richard C. Patterson, Jr., Tito was rude to him and to his lovely wife and nobody made much of a fuss about that because, I presume, it was expected that Tito would be rude. That was before Tito was kicked out of the Cominform by Stalin and turned his face westward to get a cool billion of the American taxpayers' dollars.

May I suggest to Senator Green and Representative Gordon of the Senate and House Committees dealing with foreign affairs that they might hold public hearings into the misconduct of foreign officials in New York. They would get an earful and the public would discover that when the striped pants come off, some of these fellows are no better than they were before the revolution.

Water Reservoir To Aid Ohio Town

WILLIAMSBURG (AP)—This Clermont County town, one of those hit hardest by a water shortage a few years ago, Saturday began pumping water into a new 15-million-gallon upland reservoir for the first time.

J. M. Wingo, president of the board of public affairs, said operation of the reservoir and a dam behind it will prevent a recurrence of the water shortage during which thousands of gallons had to be trucked into the town.

Russians Pass All Others In Undersea Craft

Soviets May Have Atomic Submarines, Snorkel Devices

LONDON (AP)—Russia, which has never built an aircraft carrier and last laid down the keel of a battleship in 1909, has replaced Great Britain as the world's second ranking naval power.

This development, which comes as a shock to many a naval traditionalist, is conceded for the first time this year by Jane's Fighting Ships, unofficial "bible" of the world's navies.

Since the end of World War II, says Jane's in its newly published 1956-57 edition, Russia has built more submarines, more cruisers and more destroyers than all other nations combined.

Jane's, which has been keeping tabs on warship building throughout the world for 59 years, shows the United States still comfortably ahead of Russia in terms of overall naval strength.

THE UNITED STATES is described as "intensely" active in the production of carrier and atomic-powered ships. Russia is even more active in building submarines and lighter surface ships, while Britain, which has not ordered a major warship since the end of World War II, has been steadily cutting back in almost all categories.

Great Britain's cruiser strength has been lopped in half since 1946 while Russia jumped from eight to 30 and the United States hovered around 75.

Russia now leads both the United States and Britain in submarines and has more than twice as many destroyers as Britain.

Russia's neglect of the aircraft carrier is explained in terms of the strategy for which her fleet is designed. Her major war aim, says Jane's, would be to sever sea communications between the NATO powers and prevent Western warships and merchantmen from entering European and Asian waters.

For this purpose, the submarine is the prime weapon. The British and American navies, which are designed to assault land targets as well as enemy ships, place their greatest emphasis on the carrier. Jane's acknowledges that information on Russian ships is difficult to get, but its reports indicate that the quality of the swiftly growing Soviet fleet is very good.

OVER HALF of the Russian submarines are of the large or medium ocean-going type, says Jane's. Much of the new construction is patterned after the German U-boats captured at the end of World War II, and many are equipped with the snorkel underwater breathing device.

Jane's does not include reports, widely-published elsewhere, that Russia may have atomic-powered submarines either in operation or under construction. But it says of the new Soviet cruisers and destroyers:

"These are modern and incorporate the latest technological equipment. They are fully manned in active commission and are continually undergoing rigorous training operations, demonstrating the important position the control of the sea holds in Soviet grand strategy."

'Softening' Of Education Under Fire

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Teachers and school administrators must take the lead in reversing the trend toward a softening of the educational process, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, president of Case Institute of Technology, said here today.

"You will have in your hands in the years ahead a new and important weapon for use in this battle," the Cleveland educator said in an address prepared for delivery at the third general session of the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators. "The entrance requirements for colleges are not going to be reduced as the number of applicants increases."

Glennan declared that fewer high schools now are offering courses in physics, chemistry and geometry and said this trend has resulted in a "situation where only about 55 per cent of high school students are taking mathematics of science, as compared to about 85 per cent who studied these subjects 50 years ago."

He told the administrators this trend has come about as secondary schools have attempted to meet their responsibilities toward the terminal student, since today it is no longer the case that the great majority of high school students will go on for a college degree.

136 Communities In Ohio Still Need Sewage Plants

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—There still are 32 cities and 104 villages in Ohio that need sewage treatment plants, the annual report of the Water Pollution Control Board, which is being prepared, will say.

During 1956, eight cities and seven villages were added to the board's list of places with satisfactory treatment to prevent pollution of water.

Since the board's program began late in 1952, the number of cities with adequate sewage treatment plants has increased from 28 to 62 while the number of villages with approved sewage disposal plants has grown from 106 to 128, the report will say.

There are 316 industries with satisfactory handling of wastes, 44 being added to the list last year.

Another 72 cities and villages have sewers discharging into treatment plants of larger communities and, the board says, have adequate facilities as they do not cause any pollution of watercourses.

As population increases some sewage systems turn out to be inadequate, and 26 cities and 30 villages entered that category in 1956. But the board said 24 communities had necessary improvements under construction by the end of the year, 15 others had plans finished for improvements and still others were working on plans.

Homesick Cadet Admits Arson

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 15-year-old "homesick" cadet has admitted he started a fire in an Ohio Military Institute dormitory Friday night which routed 50 cadets from their rooms.

Fire Marshal Robert Sommer said the boy told officers he obtained paper and magazines from a rubbish can and set fire to them on the dormitory stairway. Fire prevention officers said the youth told them he thought that if enough progress is being made in pollution abatement in Ohio."

damage resulted he would get to leave to go to his home in Detroit. The boy was turned over to juvenile officials.

Homesick Cadet Admits Arson

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 15-year-old "homesick" cadet has admitted he started a fire in an Ohio Military Institute dormitory Friday night which routed 50 cadets from their rooms.

Fire Marshal Robert Sommer said the boy told officers he obtained paper and magazines from a rubbish can and set fire to them on the dormitory stairway. Fire prevention officers said the youth told them he thought that if enough progress is being made in pollution abatement in Ohio."

damage resulted he would get to leave to go to his home in Detroit. The boy was turned over to juvenile officials.
